Solid Business Gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's leading business indicators turned in a solid gain last month, providing new evidence the economy will be strong this year, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The leading indicators index advanced by 2.2 per cent in December, and the November increase, originally reported at a weak 0.2 per cent was actually a respectable 0.9 per cent, the department said.

The government says that the index, compiled each month, is a good gauge of whether the economy is ready to move up or down.

Asst. Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said the December report and the November revision point to a "year of strong economic gains."

Passer said the indicators dealing with employment were the most encouraging.

The indicator of the average work week increased by 0.5 per cent and unemployment insurance claims, 11.6 per cent. An increase in the unemployment insurance claims indicator means fewer claims are being filed.

"These two labor-market series strengthened in the closing months of 1971, in contrast to a lackluster showing earlier in the year," Passer said.

"This turnaround may well be signaling a significant reduction in unemployment in 1972."

While the indicators for employment may have been strong, those dealing with business investment were not, indicating that this is still a weak area of the economy.

Four of the eight leading indicators increased and 4 declined.

Those declining were indicators for new orders for durable goods, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, industrial materials prices, and the price-labor cost ratio.

Improving, besides the average work week and unemployment insurance indicators, were those for building permits and stock prices.

"The increases were all substantial while the declines were small," Passer said in explaining why the index rose so strongly.

He added that a revision of all the 1971 figures showed the indicators rose more strongly than reported earlier, mainly to reflect upward revisions in the profits of companies.

Traffic Controllers Settle

Canadian Air Strike Ends

OTTAWA (AP) — A settlement in the 10-day-old air traffic controllers strike that has paralyzed Canada's airports was announced Thursday night. Commercial flights were expected to resume Friday afternoon.

The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, whose members walked out Jan. 17, and the government treasury board agreed to submit their differences to binding arbitration.

The end to the strike is based on an offer by mediator Noel Hall to arbitrate the two issues still unsettled in the contract dispute.

The controllers would be guaranteed a 17 per cent salary increase in a 27-month contract upon their return to work. Hall would decide the final size of the settlement.

Also guaranteed would be a 1½-hour reduction in the 1,600 controllers' work week, effective on April 1. They now work 36 hours a week.

Monday, the controllers had voted overwhelmingly to reject a mediated settlement proposal.

Rights Panel Power Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the third time this week, the Senate voted Thursday against denying the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission authority to issue orders to halt racial, religious or sex discrimination in employment.

The 45 to 32 vote came on a motion by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to table and thus kill a House-passed equal employment bill. The measure had been called up by Sens. James B. Allen, D-Ala., and Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

The House bill, unlike a proposed Senate measure, would require the EEOC to bring suits in federal district courts against discriminatory practices rather than let it issue cease-and-desist orders.

Earlier in the week, by votes of 43-to-41 and 48-to-46, the Senate defeated an amendment by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., to strike cease-and-desist authority from the Senate bill in favor of enforcement through the courts.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Republican Leader Hugh Scott told newsmen they were still hopeful that a filibuster could be avoided. Debate on the bill is now in its second week.

Daring Hijack

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — A skyjacker was killed by an FBI agent with a point-blank shotgun blast Thursday while attempting to flee a Mohawk airliner with $200,000 cash ransom and a stewardess as hostage.

The latest incident of air piracy began at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday when Heinrich von George, 45-year-old jobless father of seven children, commandeered a twin-engine propeller as it approached New York's La Guardia Airport from Albany. The pilot was forced to land at Westchester County Airport near White Plains, where the 42 passengers were allowed to deplane.

The mounting drama ended 10 hours later, when an unidentified FBI agent poked a shotgun into a getaway car that Von George had ordered at the Dutchess County Airport here. The agent was quoted as saying Von George screamed, whirled behind the wheel and fired a gun. A retaliatory shotgun blast killed him instantly.

The stewardess in the seat beside the hijacker—pretty, blonde Eileen McAllister, 35—was not injured. In the car was a duffle bag into which the $200,000 ransom had been stuffed.

Ironically, Von George had nearly pulled off his desperate air ransom scheme with nothing more deadly than a normal harmless starter's pistol. What he had flourished aboard the plane as a bomb turned out to be two water-filled army canteens, wrapped in a blanket.

Before Von George's death, a small posse of FBI men, plus other law enforcement officials had been mobilized against him. Even the pilot and copilot of the plane were better armed than the skyjacker. On the ground at White Plains, the FBI had slipped pistols to them through a cockpit window.

Indochina War

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops stumbled on to a base camp occupied by a company of enemy soldiers in the central highlands, touching off on Thursday one of the sharpest battles since a North Vietnamese buildup began there two months ago.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 25 North Vietnamese were killed, 20 of them by air strikes, in the ensuing battle. The base camp was found 13 miles southeast of Tan Canh in the general area of the Ben Het border base.

The number of South Vietnamese casualties was not disclosed, but Saigon headquarters reported five government troops were killed and nine wounded in scattered battles across South Vietnam in which it claimed 107 enemy soldiers died.

In the other most significant battles reported Thursday, the South Vietnamese command said 20 enemy soldiers were killed near Cai Lay, a district town 45 miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta, and 22 others northwest of the capital.

UTU, Rail Industry Sign New Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Transportation Union Thursday signed a new 3½-year contract with the railroad industry calling for streamlined new work rules and a 42-per cent pay raise for 140,000 trainmen.

Spokesmen for the union and the National Railway Labor Conference announced the signing late Thursday.

The union had been refusing to implement the agreement, reached tentatively last Aug. 2 at the end of an 18-day strike that tied up 10 rail lines. It had demanded assurances from the government that wage controls would not trim any of the pay raises.

The Pay Board Tuesday stopped short of granting such total approval, but did adopt by a one-vote margin a resolution clearing the tentative contract from its starting date of Jan. 1, 1970 to the present, and saying it intends to approve this year's scheduled raises, totaling 10 per cent, if the work rules go into effect.

Since the contract is retroactive more than two years, this would leave in doubt only the last 5 per cent in the contract's scheduled raises, due in two steps during the first six months next year.

The union had delayed for two days saying whether that arrangement would be satisfactory. Finally, late Thursday, the agreement was signed.

"The action of the Pay Board upon the UTU's application respecting the new agreement removed the last barrier to execution," the union said in a statement.

Union President A. H. Chesler, had no comment on the action.

Earlier Thursday there had been premature reports that the agreement had been put into effect, but spokesmen for the industry and the union both denied them until their announcements shortly before 6 p.m.

The agreement covers firemen, brakemen, conductors and other operating personnel, including a few engineers.

It contains changes in work rules the industry says will enable it to speed service and eventually save millions of dollars.

Among the changes are more flexible seniority, longer train runs between crew changes, more switching by road crews and elimination of extra pay for use of two-way radios.

Stans Steps Down From Cabinet Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans stepped down from the Nixon Cabinet Thursday, with the President's personal send-off, to become chief fund-raiser for Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The President simultaneously announced a reshuffling of two top White House Economic advisors to fill the gap.

Peter G. Peterson, 45, of Chicago, a former president of the Bell & Howell Photographic Equipment Co., was picked as Stans' successor. Nixon said Peterson will carry on ideas he has been working on in his present post as executive director of the President's Council on International Economic Policy.

Peter M. Flanagan, 48, a presidential assistant and a former campaigner for Nixon, who has specialized in economic and financial areas in the White House, was moved into Peterson's spot.

Nixon appeared with all three in the White House press room to make the announcements.

He did not specify Stans' new Republican role, noting that he has promised not to discuss partisan political matters until after the convention.

Stans' resignation is effective as soon as Peterson is confirmed by the Senate.

Stans' leaving the Cabinet came as "no surprise," as Nixon acknowledged, since it had been reported for week that Stans would resume the campaign job he did for Nixon in 1968.

Nixon hailed Peterson as a young man who has been "remarkably successful" in business, has an understanding of world affairs, and could do "an outstanding job" in the Commerce Department.

Peterson said he will continue to look into improving America's competitive position and increasing its productivity.

Stans said he is leaving the commerce post he has held for three years with "some reluctance," and added: "I really and sincerely feel I can serve my country best by working for his (Nixon's) election so he can carry out the programs he has initiated."

He said the same thing in a formal letter of resignation dated Jan. 17—10 days ago. Nixon in a letter dated Thursday, expressed his gratitude to Stans "because you will be playing a key role in the forthcoming campaign."

Stans was director of the Budget Bureau in the last three years of the Eisenhower administration and was an investment banker in private life.

Rogers Expresses Hesitant Optimism About Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers expressed some hesitant optimism Thursday about the future of President Nixon's eight-point peace plan because the North Vietnamese had not rejected the proposal at the Paris talks.

After saying a main sticking point in the negotiations is Hanoi's insistence on a Communist-imposed government for South Vietnam, Rogers told a conference of editors and broadcasters:

"I am somewhat encouraged by the fact they (the North Vietnamese) have not rejected our proposals at Paris this morning."

"There has been a good deal of 'inveective,' the secretary continued, "but they have not rejected" the plan outlined by President Nixon earlier this week and formally presented at Paris Thursday.

Rogers said he had talked to William Porter, the chief U.S. delegate at the Paris talks, following his meeting with the North Vietnamese representatives and was told the other side had asked questions about the American plan, particularly dealing with procedures for a proposed election.

"That is a good sign," the secretary declared, "that is what negotiations are all about."

He tempered his encouragement with such statements as: "It is not clear at all" that the North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies are seriously interested in a peaceful settlement.

"North Vietnam insists that the government of South Vietnam be removed and a government of their choosing take over," Rogers said, adding the American position insists on a free election.

"We are perfectly flexible" on the procedures involving an election, the secretary said, and "we are prepared to do anything to insure the election is fair."

However, he said, "we cannot accept North Vietnam imposing a Communist government on South Vietnam ... the United States cannot retreat from that as a matter of principle."

Although he outlined the various points of the Nixon plan, Rogers stressed primarily the matter of an election as the keystone to the current deadlock and an area of flexibility.

While declining to speculate on the outcome of any South Vietnamese election, Rogers said, "My guess would be that ... the people of South Vietnam would support a free system."

He indicated the South Vietnamese, who have been fighting the Viet Cong for years, would not willingly adopt a Communist government.

Criticism Meets Nixon Viet Peace Proposal

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong unleashed a barrage of criticism Thursday against every major point of President Nixon's peace plan but stopped short of outright rejection.

The U.S. delegate told the Vietnamese Communists the United States will not complete a total withdrawal from South Vietnam until a final agreement is signed based "on all aspects" of Nixon's plan. The United States and South Vietnam placed the eight-point plan before the Paris peace talks.

The 142nd session of the talks showed no outwardly visible movement toward genuine negotiations, but such movement would not necessarily appear in the semipublic sessions.

The Nixon plan was under discussion over the past two years in secret meetings in Paris, between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, and North Vietnamese negotiators. The South Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations were excluded from these talks because the Communists would not negotiate with Saigon's representative.

In presenting the plan, U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter and South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam stressed that it was flexible and open to negotiation. The allied delegates hoped that the Communist side might take up the challenge and open bargaining in public or secret meetings.

The meeting produced no hint that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations were ready to bargain—publicly or privately—on the basis of Nixon's plan.

After denouncing the plan as a maneuver by Nixon to get himself re-elected president, Xuan Thuy, the North Vietnamese delegate, said he would have "other comments to make" later.

Thuy denounced Nixon for divulging the secret Kissinger contracts in spite of a formal promise he said the United States gave the North Vietnamese.

It was the second time in the three-year-old conference that Nixon has violated a similar undertaking, Thuy asserted, and added: "If Mr. Nixon cannot keep such a solemn promise, then what credibility will his other statements have?"

Both Thuy and the Viet Cong's Nguyen Van Tien referred to the Viet Cong's seven-point peace plan submitted to the talks last July 1. They avoided all reference to the nine-point plan North Vietnam put to Kissinger in the secret talks. The Hanoi plan demanded American war reparations. The United States rejected the demand while offering Hanoi a share in a multibillion-dollar reconstruction program.

Porter told the Communist side: "We would be willing, once there is an over-all agreement in principle, to begin implementing certain military aspects of the agreement, such as those affecting withdrawals and prisoners, while we continue to negotiate on other aspects."

"However, in connection with troop withdrawals, I wish to make it clear that although they could start on the date of the agreement in principle, they would not be totally completed before a final agreement on all aspects of the problem is signed."

Porter emphasized Nixon's plan was meant to be "as flexible as possible, so that we can speed the negotiations."

"We will endeavor to respond to any questions you may have or any clarifications you may seek with respect to the proposal, which is a serious attempt to meet those proposals already brought forward by your side," Porter said.

"In presenting this proposal, our purpose is to try to break the deadlock here. Please give this plan the careful attention it deserves."

Fighting Reverse Racism

It is good to find a coalition of black ministers in Newark, N.J., seeking to counter the reverse racism which has been evidenced in that city. Excessive assertion of pride in race, whether by blacks or whites, has no place in a society graced by the doctrine that all men are created equal.

A short time ago the Newark School Board required that the so-called black liberation flag be flown at all public schools where black pupils are in the majority. To our way of thinking, this is no more acceptable than a ruling that a white supremacy flag must be flown wherever white children predominate.

In either case, this would divisively set whites against blacks and thus perpetuate animosity. This is just what we do not need—a heightening of the fear and suspicion and hatred that mar relations between the races.

Whether or not they so intend, the black nationalists' activities often have this effect. We find it heartening that after a period of silence a number of black clergymen in Newark have begun to speak up for a more moderate and potentially far more effective approach to assuring racial equality.

Shouting Down Ideas

The disruptive clamor of dissident voices has become an increasing problem at conferences of scholarly groups. A case in point was the hullabaloo at the meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Extremists intolerably reviled and shouted down speakers whose views they found distasteful.

There may be a general inclination to shrug off this phenomenon, supposing it to be of concern only to the academic community. That is not at all the case. Whenever there are systematic, determined efforts to shut off rational discussion anywhere in our society, that is of the broadest concern. This is all the more true with regard to gatherings of scientists and other academics, since it is they who are in effect the cutting edge of the nation's intellectual advancement.

Their meetings often are the testing ground for new ideas, and it is very important that these be freely advocated and discussed. Attempts to inhibit such discussion, however well intentioned, are an affront to reason which runs wholly counter to the values of an open society.

A Rash Of Incidents

Speculation as to what motivates the Kremlin is inspired by the several episodes of Soviet-U.S. friction which have been reported lately. The White House has taken the line that these troublesome events will have no effect on President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Moscow. Even so, it seems that such happenings will tend to sour U.S.-Soviet relations at an unfortunate time. The question is why the Soviet government is permitting this friction to occur.

Consider the episodes involved: the ouster of an American congressman from Russia, the attack on a U.S. Air Force officer at the Riga airport, the dispute over a Soviet exchange student who attempted suicide, and most recently the Coast Guard's run-in with Soviet fishing vessels. It strikes us that in each case, with the possible exception of that involving the exchange student, Soviet authorities might quickly have defused the situation had they chosen to do so.

To begin with, the Russians need not have expelled Rep. James H. Scheuer (D-New York); they could have chosen the less public course of simply keeping him under surveillance and permitting him to leave on schedule instead of a day earlier as they insisted. It seems likely that the assault on the air attaché in Riga might have been prevented. As for the fishing boat episode, it is hard to believe that Soviet captains would have caused trouble had Moscow wanted it otherwise.

This suggests that Soviet officials may be encouraging episodes of friction for their own purposes. The Kremlin's concern may be to counteract any feeling at home that the Soviet government is in the least "softened" toward capitalistic America by the impending presidential visit. That is not a very satisfying explanation of Moscow's evident unwillingness to put a damper on U.S.-Soviet incidents, but it is a possibility.

Officials Struggle To Define Amendatory Veto

By TOM LAUE
SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Suppose Congress gives draft resisters unconditional amnesty. But imagine, too, the President prefers making them serve the government several years first and tells Congress to accept this proviso or he won't sign the bill.

A dangerous and unwarranted intrusion into the lawmaking realm or a labor-saving technique the chief executive can use to keep alive legislation he would otherwise junk completely?

The example, of course, is hypothetical but the questions it raises are anything but academic for Illinois officials struggling to define a new power—the amendatory veto—given the governor by the Illinois 1970 Constitution.

The amendatory veto lets the governor make "specific recommendations for change" in any bill passed by the legislature. If a majority of each house of the General Assembly agrees with the governor's changes, the bill becomes law. Otherwise, the entire measure is considered vetoed.

But what are the limits, if any, on the governor's constitutional right to touch up legislation?

Except for occasional cries from state legislators charging the amendatory veto gives the governor too much lawmaking power, the issue lay largely dormant during the first six months Illinois operated under its new charter.

Attorney General William J. Scott offered an opinion on the amendatory veto in October, but it did little to dispel confusion. Scott didn't make it clear if he thought the governor may propose broad, sweeping changes in bills or is limited to fixing technical errors, such as spelling and punctuation mistakes.

Whatever Scott's view, Senate Minority Leader W. Russell Arrington, who sought Scott's opinion, seemed satisfied and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie went on altering bills at will, changing some 40 pieces of legislation which the General Assembly agreed to approve.

Then the Illinois Supreme Court, ruling on the state's controversial $30 million parochial aid plan, said this month it did not know exactly what the new constitution, or those who framed it, intended by the language used to define amendatory veto.

"It can be said with certainty, however, that the substitution of complete new bills, as attempted in the present case, is not authorized by the constitution," the high court said.

Ironically, Ogilvie used the amendatory veto on the parochial aid bill only after the U.S. Supreme Court struck down similar plans in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania.

Ogilvie and parochial backers wanted to shore up the bills' chances of surviving the inevitable court test of their constitutionality.

Because the court's comment on the amendatory veto was essentially an aside, most observers agreed parochial aid had not been found unconstitutional. But the court's comment did leave in doubt the status of every law Ogilvie had a hand in writing.

"Since the court's amendatory veto comment dealt only with the parochial aid bills, and only then indirectly, we'll assume all these bills are law unless the court says otherwise," said William Hanley of the governor's staff.

Delegates to the convention which drew up the constitution have distinctly different recollections of what powers they thought they were giving the amendatory veto.

"It was meant to be a tool for use by both the executive and legislative branches," said Joseph A. Tecson, chairman of the executive committee at the convention. "As long as they both agree, what's the problem? Why should the third branch (the courts) come in and say, 'You can't do that?'"

Tecson said the executive committee envisioned giving the governor a wide range of bill-amending prerogatives, from the purely technical to the clearly substantive.

But Democratic state Sen. John Knapp, also a con-con delegate, said, "Any delegate who wasn't on the executive committee will tell you he thought he was voting to give the governor the very limited right to correct drafting flaws when he approved the amendatory veto. No one ever dreamed he'd be rewriting legislation."

The transcript of convention debates on the amendatory veto reveals little concern over just how far the governor might go. Only once did a delegate, Dawn Clark Netsch, ask if the amendatory veto "would be available only to correct technical errors."

Delegate Frank Orlando replied, "No, ma'am" but he didn't expand his answer.

Orlando is late quoted as saying the executive committee wanted to give the governor "this power to enter the legislative process to this extent: That if there were some things that could be changed or modified in the legislation, he would make the suggested specific changes, send it back to the legislature and they would have to accept the changes in that form."

But still the question remains: What exactly are "suggested specific changes?" Specific changes can be narrow or broad, and no one in Illinois government seems willing to say precisely what the phrase means.

Perhaps the answer lies elsewhere, in one of the four states that have had amendatory or "conditional" vetoes 25 years or more.

Though the constitutional language varies, Alabama, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Virginia give their governors the right to change legislation, either substantively or technically.

In those four states, governors have been doing just that for years, apparently without serious objections from the lawmakers.

Whether the changes are simply technical or somewhat substantive—as in New Jersey where Gov. William J. Cahill recently extended a separation provision in the state's no-fault divorce law from 12 to 18 months—the amendatory veto has never been challenged in court.

Muskie Faces Up To Illinois Run

By BRUCE BISSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. Edmund Muskie's decision to enter the "beauty contest" part of the March 21 Illinois primary was the kind of extra-mile maneuver that front-runners are supposed to make.

The preference test is purely advisory, with results having no binding effect on the 170 Illinois delegates to the 1972 Democratic convention at Miami.

Muskie could easily have begged off, saying he could not spare the time or money for personal campaigning in the state, while trying in the same period to compete in the early New Hampshire, Florida and Wisconsin primaries.

That argument was weighed. Set against it, among other things, was a long memo from Muskie's key Illinois operative, Angelo Geocaris, who advised him strongly to make the run.

For one thing, a good vote score in Illinois could be a balancing factor if Muskie's showings in the prior New Hampshire and Florida engagements were somehow disappointing.

For another, Muskie's name on the Illinois ballot could be a drawing card to help pull out voters who then might vote for Muskie-pledged candidates for delegate in many congressional districts.

The rival entry of Eugene McCarthy is welcomed in the Muskie camp. It gives the Maine senator someone to beat, and his people think he can do it resoundingly.

They also would have welcomed competition from Sen. George McGovern, whose Illinois aides left a confusing picture as to his intentions. While one was saying he did not want to file, others were belatedly rushing a necessary document to Springfield—and missing the deadline.

The big point is, however, that Muskie can give his campaign a psychological lift by piling up a personal vote.

His real Illinois goal, naturally, is to capture a large flock of delegates. Of the 170 the state chooses, 160 will be elected on primary day in the 24 congressional districts, roughly on the basis of five to eight per district.

Muskie will try for pledged delegates in at least 15 of the districts, and perhaps as many as 19. The other five are all in Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago and will not be contested.

The only Chicago territory Muskie's forces will definitely battle for is Rep. Sidney Yates' ninth district.

On the doubtful list is the first district, where Daley is leaving decision to black Rep. Ralph Metcalfe. Some Chicago suburban areas are also among Muskie's doubts.

The maximum possible delegate pickup will vary between 100 and 120 of the 160 field total —depending upon the number of districts contested.

Muskie's strategists publicly say a bag of 50 will be good, but it is obvious they will be disappointed if they do not surpass the 80 mark. That would be half the field total.

Though McGovern is not in the preference contest, he will seek delegates in the districts. He is given the best chance in the liberal tenth on the North Shore above Chicago, and in the 21st, the Champaign-Bloomington university circuit. In December he suggested a target of 25 to 40 delegates.

Under reform law and rules, delegates for the first time in an Illinois presidential primary may bind themselves by putting their presidential choice on the ballot beside their own names. They will be considered committed, though not legally bound.

The 160 winners March 21 will choose the other ten in a vote.

Ann Landers:

Talk With Doctor Allays Guilt Feelings

Dear Ann Landers: This is for Maryland Mom—the woman who blamed herself for having a miscarriage. She went bowling in her fifth month and lost the baby. A friend told her that if she had carried the baby another couple of weeks it could have survived in an incubator.

I experienced a similar incident and I hope you will print my letter so "friends" will keep their stupid mouths shut.

I was eight months pregnant and feeling wonderful. One evening when my husband was working late, I decided to get the house spotless before I went to the hospital—so I got out a ladder and started to wash the kitchen walls.

I was nearly finished when the phone rang. It was my girlfriend. When I told her I was washing the kitchen walls, she screamed, "Are you crazy? Do you want that baby to be born with the cord around his neck?" Well, that's exactly what happened two weeks later.

I can't describe the thoughts that went through my head: first anger and hate because I thought she had "wished it" on me. Then guilt. I was certain I had killed my baby. I nearly went out of my mind with grief.

It was my wonderful obstetrician who saved my sanity. He told me that wall-washing had nothing whatever to do with the strangulation, that such things happen and no one knows why. He encouraged me to have another baby right away, and I did. Thank God we now have a healthy, normal child.

So, Ann, please tell friends not to make such thoughtless, idiotic remarks. And advise the women who have tragedies like mine to talk to their doctors immediately. Getting all the terrible feelings out into the open is the only way.—Glad I Did

Dear G: I'm glad you did, too. Thanks for the testimony. A letter from a woman who has been there is a great deal more effective than anything I might say.

Dear Ann Landers: We are in our 30's and have two lovely little girls. Two years ago my husband was "sidetracked" and I found out about it. The hurt was more painful because the woman was a good friend of mine.

I made up my mind to forgive my husband and never mention it again. I love him deeply and I didn't want to deprive my children of a father whom they idolize. It seemed like the only sensible thing to do and I'm sure I made the right decision.

The problem is that my husband expects me to continue to be friendly with the woman, and this is extremely difficult. I have refused. When we meet on occasions, I try to be pleasant; but it's not easy. I feel she betrayed me and I will never get over it. I simply cannot be so hypocritical as to invite her to our home and pretend that things are lovely between us.

Do I have the wrong attitude? Please advise.—In Need of Education

Dear In Need: Your husband is expecting a great deal from you—considering he was the transgressor. While some women are capable of carrying off the charade, if you find it difficult to do so, he should not insist. As for your friend's betrayal—it took two to tango and you should not forget THAT, either.

Thoughts

"And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour my spirit on all flesh; your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions."—Joel 2:28.

There never shall be one lost good. All we have hoped or dreamed of good shall exist.—Robert Browning, English poet.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Mail Order Diets

Can Harm Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—I am one of the suckers who bit on the reducing plan through the mail. I took capsules for two days. They gave me stomach cramps so I quit. I think the government should do something about them for false advertising. They sent along a diet with their reducing plan that would cause anyone to lose weight.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your comment. I hope you don't mind my using your letter as an example of the trouble you can get into using mail-order diets. These methods are usually temporary and some can endanger your health. If you can't lose weight on a sensible diet and exercise plan, see your doctor and lose fat—not your health.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What do you think about the use of pills for diabetes? We have read in newspapers and magazines lately it could cause a fatal heart attack. My husband only takes one table three times a day, and his doctor says this isn't enough to hurt him. What do you think about this?

Dear Reader—You are doing the right thing by relying on your doctor to decide about your husband's own special needs. Pills as opposed to injections of insulin have come under a cloud of suspicion. The American Medical Association, the American Diabetic Association and the Food and Drug Administration have all suggested that people who can be treated by pills would probably do better treated by diet alone.

To be treated properly, though, by diet, the patient must cooperate with a diet plan that enables him to eliminate or avoid obesity. Many people with diabetes can do very well using diet management alone.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is the old saying "feed a fever, starve a cold" true and is it in that order? Or "starve a fever and feed a cold"?

Dear Reader—I believe the latter is the usual order. It doesn't make much difference since neither one has any medical basis. Quite the contrary, it is important to be sure you get enough nutrition when you have a fever.

A fever means the metabolism of the body is increased, generating more heat. To do this, food elements are being burned. If you don't provide the food in your diet, the body cells will be used for food. This would be fine if it were just excess fat, but often it is vital protein that makes the body strong and healthy. Whenever you are sick with either a fever or a cold, make sure that you are getting a good, well-balanced diet. This is no time to add additional burdens to the body's functions. If you need to lose weight, it is better to do this when you are well.

Chicken fat can be used in place of other shortening in regular cooking and baking or to baste chicken when broiling, roasting or baking.

AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28—Born today, you have always done your best to avoid friction with others, whether those others be mere acquaintances or the closest of friends, for you dread the building up of resentments that cause tension and destroy the basic harmony of social relationships. You seek the cooperation of others even when your heart is not in it, even when you would prefer to go your own way while others went theirs, for you truly believe that peace, whether between individuals or between groups, lies in working together.

You have a tendency to forget unpleasant things that have happened to you in your lifetime. And although such a tendency may cause you to make the same mistake twice every now and again, in the long run it does you a real service by making it all but impossible for you to suffer in retrospect. You are a happy person basically and your inclination to remember only happy moments helps to keep you that way.

Although you are by nature high-strung, you have learned the wisdom of appearing calm, cool, and collected. Even in the midst of crisis you generally do not show the kind of emotion that causes others to feel fear; rather, your ability to hide your feelings makes you the natural candidate when others are looking for one to solve their problems for them.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Saturday, January 29
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Highly aware of the plight of an old friend, you may find yourself more upset than you have been for a very long time today. Do some research.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—A troublesome hour or two early in the day must not be allowed to spoil the rest of the day for the entire family. Children are vital to a happy evening.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Do what you can to produce an effective entrance. The impression you make upon others is very important to their response to you. Think optimistically.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Exuberance makes everything you do today of the highest order. Your enthusiasm is catching; others find your views unusually interesting.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—The conditions you demand may not be at all the conditions that are apparent this Saturday. Let children know your views; they can make much of them.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Take care that you don't give the impression of being overly aggressive. Saturday activities take you outdoors—regardless of weather.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Take up another "cause" if you can do so without compromising on principles. High standards of behavior are essential to today's success.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Get personal projects underway as early in the day as possible. Friends and family come to your rescue should you jump in over your head.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Today's environmental conditions are such that you may find yourself under considerable nervous tension. Don't be surprised should you fail a minor test.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Conditions you have previously regarded as intolerable may suddenly seem not so bad. Much depends upon your ability to face new facts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—If the present movement strikes you as really worthwhile, then turn your full attention to it. Otherwise, you might be wise to deny your support.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Quick results are not what this Saturday brings. Be content to work or play only the results that occur.

BEARDSTOWN CLUB BACKS MARCH OF DIMES CAMPAIGN

BEARDSTOWN—The March of Dimes effort is in progress in Beardstown and the goal is to raise $1,500 for the drive. The Beardstown Woman's club is again sponsoring the effort here, and canisters have been placed in business houses and other points for deposit of contributions.

Mrs. J. M. Galbraith is chairman for the drive this year.

Remodeling
Cassel Spoon, local Shell Service station operator, has announced plans to remodel his station at 4th and State streets.

The work has started, and Mr. Spoon says the remodeling will include work outside as well as inside the station. He took over the station in 1950.

Paris, Brussels, Cologne and Amsterdam are all nearer London than Glasgow or Edinburgh.

Fair Board
Welcomes Jr.'s
Offer Of Trees

Mrs. James Bowman and Mrs. William Ezzell of the Jacksonville Junior Women's Club met Wednesday, January 26 with the Morgan County Fair Board. The board unanimously approved the Conservation Committee's plan for planting trees and shrubs around the Morgan County fair grounds. A committee consisting of Pat McHatten, Walter DeShara, and Glenn Spencer was appointed to meet with Joe Graham, U.S.D.A. Conservationist, to finalize plans.

Depending on the arrival of the trees, planting is scheduled for early spring.

It is hoped this will just be the initial step in a beautification program for the fairgrounds.

Ex-Con Will Speak Sunday
At Westfair

Arnold J. Vander Meulen, former convict, drunkard, and dope addict who turned his back on his old life to become an evangelist, will speak Sunday, January 30th at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., at Westfair Baptist church, located on West Lafayette Road.

A. J. Vander Meulen

Vander Meulen, who terms himself as "ex-convict saved by God's grace," will tell of his conversion to Christ in Chicago's famed Pacific Garden Mission, where such men as Mel Trotter and Billy Sunday, both widely known evangelists of earlier years, began new lives.

Shortly after he turned his back on crime, Vander Meulen surrendered to the FBI and was sentenced to Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, Michigan, on old felony charges. It was in this prison that he decided to enter the ministry. In prison, he supervised the prison Bible School, which grew from a handful of inmates to more than 700 men studying the Bible behind prison walls. Vander Meulen was paroled after having served only two years of his long sentence, and almost immediately began his evangelistic career.

In this meeting he will share his experiences behind prison walls and on the Skid Rows of America. He will also describe his present-day ministry of Prison Evangelism and Rescue Missions. He has founded 9 Rescue Missions, located in the Skid Row districts of some of America's major cities. These Missions minister annually to tens of thousands of derelicts, offering free food, clothing, and overnight lodging in an effort to aid them spiritually.

Vander Meulen's prison and jail work has taken him into penal institutions in every state of the U.S.; in 5 Canadian Provinces; into Mexico; and Puerto Rico. He preaches to thousands of inmates annually.

The public is urged by the pastor, Charles H. Puckett, to attend this special meeting.

Bombs Explode
Aboard Yugoslav
Train, Airliner

VIENNA (UPI)—A bomb exploded yesterday on a Yugoslav train, injuring several persons, one day after a Yugoslav airliner exploded and crashed in northwestern Czechoslovakia with the loss of 26 lives.

(A Croatian organization in Malmö, Sweden, said yesterday it was responsible for the airliner explosion in belief a Yugoslav cabinet minister would be aboard.)

Yugoslav police said a bomb exploded yesterday aboard a train running from Vienna to Zagreb, Yugoslavia, and that six persons were wounded, two of them seriously.

Varying reports from Stockholm, Copenhagen, Prague and Belgrade said the airliner—an American-made DC9 owned by the Yugoslav Airlines (JAT) and flying from Copenhagen to Zagreb Wednesday—carried 22 or 23 passengers and a crew of five.

At nightfall Wednesday, rescuers had found 15 bodies and one survivor who was seriously hurt, Copenhagen Airport officials said. Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, reported from Prague that 11 bodies had been found and one woman was critically injured. The search for other passengers was to resume today.

Stockholm Airport said all passengers were Yugoslav with the exception of one Swede and one Norwegian.

The jetliner was flying a regularly scheduled route from Stockholm and Copenhagen to Zagreb and Belgrade when it exploded over northwestern Czechoslovakia, near the East German frontier, Tanjug said.

The plane crashed near the town of Ceska Kamenice, about six miles south of the border. Tanjug set the time at 11:05 a.m. EST—the moment when the Prague Airport control tower lost touch with the plane.

'Sickle' Slayer Found Guilty

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—A jury of seven women and five men Wednesday night found Clarence Otis Smith guilty of being the "sickle" slayer—the laughing, growling killer who hacked two persons to death in a peaceful Sierra foothills campground last summer.

The balding, 44-year-old defendant, who testified he was harassed by demons, greeted the verdict with stoic silence, staring straight ahead and displaying no emotion.

The Nevada County Superior Court jury ruled Smith guilty of first-degree murder in the midnight slaying of Donna Fitzhugh, 28, Ontario, Calif., and second-degree murder in the slaying of John Simmons, 29, Weimar. The district attorney said the killings turned the campground into a near "battlefield."

Hope Engineer
Corps Improves
Cass Marina

BEARDSTOWN—Beardstown Park Board officials are much interested in the Corps of Engineers meetings to be held February 3 at the CIPS company building in connection with projects for improvement of the Beardstown Marina and the Hager Slough Drainage district.

Main interest of the park board is in getting the Corps to sponsor a project for the improvement of the channel and harbor at the Marina. Trouble there has been due to siltation from the Sangamon river.

The meeting on the Hager Slough project will be held in the morning, and the afternoon session will be devoted to Marina problems.

The general public has been invited.

Rural Waverly

WAVERLY—A rural Waverly man, employed on the Paul Briney farm was found dead in a field near his home about noon Wednesday. The victim, Earl James, age 62, is believed to have fallen from a horse.

James was in the habit of riding a horse from his home to his work nearby at the Briney property. His body was frozen when found by his employer, Paul Briney, and the body showed a head injury according to Sangamon county coroner Norman Richter. The body was found north of Lowder.

The last time James was seen alive was shortly before noon the preceding day, Tuesday, Jan. 25th. When James' horse returned to the stable Tuesday evening without a rider a search was started.

The remains are at the Berry Funeral Home in Virden, where services will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday with interment in West Grove cemetery, Virden.

James was born at Waggener in Macoupin county June 30, 1912, son of Earless J. and Maude Quick James, now residents of Litchfield. He was married in 1933 to Bessie White who survives with these children.

Copters Flying In Oriental Skies Over 500 Years

CHICAGO (UPI) — Helicopters, which only recently have won a firm place in aviation, may have been flying around in Oriental skies more than 500 years ago.

They were toys, known as Chinese tops, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, and by the mid-15th century were amusing scattered spectators in Europe.

However, as far as is known, no one either in the Orient or in Europe tried to transform the principle of the toy chopper into people-sized flying machines. A few years later Leonardo da Vinci designed a small helicopter but this did not carry people either.

Not For 300 Years

Helicopter development took a recess for another 300 years until Sir George Cayley, in about 1792, developed a contra-rotating model. From this came all modern helicopter developments.

Except for the toys, which presumably utilized thrust from the human arm, power was the big problem with helicopters. Some of the early models involved steam engines and — amazingly — a large twisted rubber band. Even the rapid development of the gasoline engine in the 1890s did not immediately advance helicopter flight.

It was not until 1907 that the first man-carrying helicopter, built by Paul Cornu, made a free vertical flight. But he and other chopper pioneers never solved the other big problem — control.

Stumbling Blocks

The simpler flight techniques demonstrated by the Wright brothers with the fixed wing discouraged many from further attempts at direct lift. Helicopter development once again was in recess.

Then, in 1923, the U.S. Army perfected a helicopter with four large rotors that flew with three persons aboard. Controlled vertical and forward flight was officially acknowledged to have been achieved in 1930, when Corradino d'Ascanio flew a coaxial helicopter.

The first really practical helicopter was the Focke-Achgelis, built by the Germans shortly before World War II. But in 1939 Igor Sikorsky, in the United States, flew a helicopter equipped with only one main rotor. Two years later he established the practicality of the single-rotor helicopter by remaining in flight for 92 minutes, breaking all previous records.

Development Of Gyroplane

During this period another type of rotary wing aircraft, the autogyro or gyroplane, was developed by Juan de la Cierva of Spain. Unlike the helicopter, this aircraft could not hover or land vertically. But its development contributed materially to the evolution of the helicopter, whose effectiveness was demonstrated convincingly during the Korean War to rescue thousands of combat casualties.

Its role in the Vietnam hostilities apparently assured its military future, but the helicopter's most important job may be in a civilian capacity in helping decentralize air travel.

semi-sweet chocolate and whipped cream. To gild the lily you may, if you like, top the servings of this Chocolate Cream Angelfood Roll with vanilla ice cream.

CHOCOLATE CREAM ANGELFOOD ROLL

1 package angelfood cake mix
2 tablespoons honey
1½ teaspoons water
½ of a 6-ounce package (½ cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup heavy cream, whipped

Line the bottom of a jelly roll pan (15 by 10 by 1 inch) with wax paper; grease paper.

Prepare cake mix according to package directions and pour into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen around edges and turn out onto a tea towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Remove paper; trim off edges. Immediately roll up cake, from 10-inch side, in towel. Cool.

In a small saucepan combine honey and water; over moderate heat, stirring constantly, bring just to a boil. Remove from heat. Add chocolate and vanilla and stir until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Cool completely. Fold in whipped cream. Chill until thick enough to spread.

Unroll cake; spread with chocolate mixture and roll up again. Chill several hours or wrap in foil and freeze. Before serving sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Cut into slices about 1-inch thick. Makes about 10 servings.

Ideological Conflicts Hamper Red Probing Of Arab World

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
BEIRUT (UPI) — European Communists are facing a major problem in the Arab world—how to support fellow Arab Communists, largely outlawed in their own countries, and strengthen relations with Arab ruling parties at the same time.

Moscow's polite but unenthusiastic reception of the Federation of Arab Republics, comprising Egypt, Libya and Syria, reflects the dilemma facing the European strategists.

For the federation required that Communist parties of member countries should be dissolved and incorporated into national organizations modeled on Egypt's Arab Socialist Union (ASU).

The Europeans know that outright support for the languishing Arab Communists could well lose them their political influence over the Arab governments.

Cropped Up Last July
The Soviet Union faced this question last July when the regime of President Jaafar Numeiry was almost unseated by a pro-Communist coup, then turned around and launched a massive campaign against the Sudanese Communist party, the highest in the Arab world.

Moscow initially seemed to abandon the party to its fate, but subsequently welcomed the coup attempt and openly opposed the punishment meted out to the Sudanese plotters.

A Beirut newsletter, an Nahar Arab report, quoted East European sources recently as saying that the Soviets are re-examining the whole question of Communism's future in the Arab world.

Expect Greater Support
The sources expected the reappraisal to lead to greater support for disciplined Arab Communists and crypto-Communists operating under cover.

What ever the decision, the Europeans will have to read carefully. They are eager to seek an even greater stake in the Middle East in the late 1970s when oil from the area will become an important part of Soviet and East European consumption—already outrunning domestic production. They do not wish to jeopardize moves toward a bigger stake in the area.

Already there are parts of the Arab region which are distinctly hostile to Communism—Libya, Sudan, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and several of the Persian Gulf states. In Egypt, too, the Soviets took a knock when President Anwar Sadat purged Communist elements led by ex-vice president Ali Sabry from the ASU.

The Beirut newsletter said, "The likelihood is that Moscow will base its hopes on an eventual rival of local Communist parties... it will not abandon Arab Communist cadres in the interest of interstate relations... It is therefore considering reverting to its established practice of supporting clandestine party activity in the Arab world."

According to this thinking, the Soviets feel they can wait until economic and demographic factors cause sufficient popular disaffection for a Communist takeover.

East Germany, facing the same problem as the Soviets, is apparently hoping that its growing involvement in the political, economic and cultural life of the Arab states will influence the forms of socialism practised by the ruling parties in directions more acceptable to Communist thinking.

Desires Recognition

It has energetically campaigned for recognition from the Arab world and has established full diplomatic links with six Arab states—Iraq, South Yemen, Sudan, Syria, Egypt and Algeria. East Germany also has established consular relations with Kuwait and hopes Lebanon will follow up its recognition of mainland China by similar action toward East Berlin.

The most significant trend in East German-Arab relations has been in the growing links with governmental and semi-governmental institutions.

A western diplomatic source said, "East Germany seems to be concentrating its efforts for the past two years on developing extensive ties with Arab civil service and government departments, political parties, trade unions and other semi-official organizations.

"These ties must inevitably lead to an increasing East German involvement in the internal affairs of Arab socialist countries."

Embassies Been Active

East German embassies have been particularly active in Syria, Iraq, Algeria, Egypt and South Yemen, where officials are increasingly cooperative in the fields of science and technology, radio and television, local government, posts and telecommunications and cultural affairs.

In August, 1970, the Egyptian television service broadcast a German language course supplied by East Germany.

An elite corps of Egyptian policemen, wearing uniforms similar to those in East Germany, recently appeared on the streets of Cairo, though the government denied that any East German experts were serving in the Egyptian security service.

East German friendship weeks, youth weeks and film weeks have been staged in a number of Arab capitals and East Germany shows interest in improving links with young people in the Arab world.

Diplomats believe the political aim of all these contacts is to establish and consolidate an East German presence in the bureaucracies and semi-governmental organization of the Arab socialist states.

She's seen malaria in Laos, cholera in India, dysentery in Nepal and malnutrition everywhere. She's the overseas administrator for the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, an organization named after the late jungle doctor, and devoted to the health of Southeast Asia through teaching, training, treating and communicating.

The tall, trim Miss Watson has been with the Dooley Foundation since its inception in 1961 and returned recently from administrative duties in Laos. At the request of the medicine chief of that country, the equivalent of a state health director here, the Dooley Foundation completed a comprehensive health survey of Laos.

Proud Of Baby Clinics
A similar survey in Nepal, under Miss Watson's direction, resulted in a health program with a direction. From their hospital in the Pokhara Valley, 200 miles due west from Katmandu, the Dooley personnel can now concentrate on the goiter they found prevalent, on the tuberculosis in the rural areas, and forget about heart trouble, an ailment that plagues new Nepalese.

An equally successful project, and one of which Miss Watson is especially proud, are the "well baby" clinics located in the three Dooley hospitals in Laos.

Here, mother and child come in to learn nutritional needs, signs and symptoms of some diseases, first aid, skin care, bathing and other basic hygiene. The fact they come in at all is a great accomplishment for the Dooley Foundation. It and all organizations aiming to treat disease in Southeast Asia with modern methods are working against hundreds of years of belief and tradition against such methods.

Miss Watson cited the example of the Laotian mothers who lie by a fire for 30 days after child-birth. According to this dedicated nurse, the mother believes the fire will "dry her out and warm up all the spirits associated with birth."

Babies Still Dying
Besides greatly weakening an already frail woman, the newborn baby receives little of the motherly care especially needed in the first weeks after birth.

It is not surprising, then, that a decade ago five in 10 Laotian children died before the age of two. And Miss Watson doesn't think the statistics have changed greatly since then.

"The contribution we've made is very small," she said. "There are thousands of Laotian villages and the Dooley Foundation has only been able to work in a few."

Children Important
It is important to the Laotians to have children.

"It behooves the Chinese people to have one or two grown sons," said Miss Watson. "The sons are the parents' security. With grown sons the parents know they will be cared for in old age."

"But in order to have two sons grow to manhood, the woman must bear eight or ten children."

Miss Watson feels we can learn something from this.

"In our society we buy insurance, annuities; we have to have security for old age. There is something to be said for a society in which young people are required to take care of old people."

Right now the Dooley Foundation is concentrating on keeping the people alive. As their knowledge of sterilization, vitamins, and precautions such as nets and screens to guard against malaria-infested mos-

Therapy Pioneer Develops Audience Participation Film

By DUSTON HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A pioneer in Esalen Institute's touch therapy and body awareness techniques has come up with another first—the audience participation movie.

Bernard Gunther, a one-time weightlifter whose book on the joys of "Sense Relaxation" has sold a quarter-million copies, turned to film in an effort to bring his methods to an even wider audience.

"I'm aiming it at people who are kind of on the fence—who have heard of the 'human potential movement,' don't know exactly what it is, and want to experience it, but in an atmosphere of safety," said Gunther, who directed and appeared in the film, "Come To Your Senses."

The experiences movie audiences participate in—if they follow Gunther's on-screen directions—include head tapping, clapping, laughing, staring at a flame and then trying to visualize it with eyes shut, and watching a series of "sensory" images, including water being dumped over models' heads, an orange being peeled and an apple being eaten.

The hour-long participation section is preceded in the film by a half-hour documentary in which nine members of an encounter group go through a typical four-day session at Esalen on the Big Sur coast of Northern California.

Touch And Trust

The emphasis is on touching and trusting. One obvious conclusion is that sensory awakening is never going to be a popular spectator sport.

"We don't ask them to understand things in their minds," said Gunther, 41, who arrived at Esalen in 1964. "We ask them to experience them in their senses and their bodies. I believe people have over-emphasized the cognitive at the expense of the sensual."

Gunther became an instructor and propagandist for sensory awakening and body awareness in a process which began with his experiences in the first government-sponsored experiment with LSD and moved through Yoga, Zen, other meditative philosophies and Gestalt therapy.

"All are alternatives to drugs," he said. "All get you in the same places, but don't leave you with the sense that there is nothing until the next drug experience."

"Expanded consciousness" is nothing out of the ordinary—children have it. But they lose it through excessive civilizing. So many people have lost their sense of being."

Gunther, who described his approach as a westernized type of Yoga designed to be integrated more easily into the lives of non-Orientalists, said its goal is to convince people to experience the present.

Things Are Changing

"I try to get them to experience what's going on, rather than what they think's going on," he said. "A lot of people worry about the future and the past, rather than the present. They experience what they think another person is like, not what he really is like."

Gunther suggested that the encounter techniques developed

Jacksonville Journal, Jacksonville, Ill., Jan. 28, 1972 7

at Esalen and 100 other centers of the so-called "human potential movement" are now moving out of the areas of problems and therapy into the development of higher human potentialities.

"Hopefully, this is where the whole new age is moving," he said. "There are a lot of indications—in dress, food, ecology, music and theater. Things are positive; some are anarchistic and sloppy. But I think it will all become part of our culture."

EPA Proposes Noise Limits On Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday the federal government should establish noise limits on aircraft and other transportation equipment, construction equipment and internal combustion engines.

It was learned also Wednesday that the EPA is drafting plans to broaden the sale of lead-free gasoline.

In a report to Congress, EPA said the technology already is available to control most forms of noise but is not being applied because of "inadequate social, economic, or governmental pressures for noise abatement."

EPA said noise already is having a harmful effect on the public and will get worse unless action is taken.

"Whereas noise levels sufficient to induce some degree of hearing loss were once confined mainly to factories and occupational situations," the report said, "noise levels approaching such intensity and duration are today being recorded on city streets and, in some cases, in and around the home."

Meanwhile, the EPA is drafting regulations to require the sale of unleaded gasoline at all large filling stations by the middle of 1974, a spokesman said Wednesday.

The EPA released a consultant's findings that lead-free gas is essential to meet 1975 and 1976 clean-air standards with automobile antipollution devices now being tested.

The report estimated auto antipollution devices might add anywhere from $229 to $388 in new equipment costs per vehicle, and car owners would pay a $56 to $109 per year extra in maintenance and operating costs, largely due to lower mileage per gallon.

EPA has authority to limit or ban lead in gasoline under the 1970 Clean Air Act but its proposed regulations still must be reviewed by the White House Office of Management and Budget.

Legislation to give EPA authority for noise control activities is currently pending in Congress.

EPA said its studies and public hearings in eight cities lead to "one over-riding conclusion: There is a need for improved and comprehensive efforts at all levels of government for environmental noise control."

DAD TO 32 CHILDREN

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Noah Smallwood, born of slave parents in North Carolina and believed the oldest man in the city, died New Year's Day at the age of 104.

Smallwood, married five times, was the father of 32 children and had more than 100 grandchildren.

PROSTITUTION PINCH

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A $200,000-a-year prostitution ring has been broken up by police who say it operated much like a mail order business.

Officers said prospective clients were furnished with catalogs containing nude photographs of the girls in the ring. Twelve persons were arrested.

NEAR RECORD RUN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Bed-knobs and Broomsticks," the recent holiday film at the Radio City Music Hall, ran for 63 days and gross receipts were $2.3 million.

The Disney production began in November and was followed on Jan. 1 by "The Cowboys," starring John Wayne.

Confessions Of A Lazy Man

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Confessions of a lazy man: The world lies before us like a freshly opened oyster—but few of us even take the trouble to look and see whether there's a pearl in it.

This is the action of lazy men, people properly scorned by proper people who do their bit to keep the world forging upward and onward. If the fate of mankind rested on us lazy ones, we'd all still be getting our main nutrients from banana plants.

Sometimes the conscience of a lazy man is appalled by his own inaction.

To take a personal case, I am now and then made uneasy by the cold fact that during a life now in the upper reaches of middle age I have never—

Owned or driven an automobile or a sailboat or a motorcycle.

Bought a house or a share of stock or a piece of the good earth larger than three cemetery plots.

Rented a pair of skis or a love nest.

Planted a garden or tracked a moose.

Trapped a mouse or shot an elephant.

Married a widow or conquered the zither.

Learned how to sew on a button or marinate a herring.

Listened to a sex lecture at a PTA meeting or broken up a dice game at Las Vegas.

Grown a beard or completed the correspondence course in ventriloquism I started at the age of 12.

Punched a timeclock or organized a riot or a respectable orgy.
Launched a missile or lunch with a king.
Oh, hell, now that I've admitted this much, I might as well tell all. I haven't even haunted a house with Phyllis Diller or spent a night out with Count Dracula painting the town red.

But if we lazy people have our moments of guilt and regret, we have our rewards, too. We don't cause more ambitious people trouble except by being too sluggish to get out of their way quick enough. But when they wear themselves out by living too hard, we are always there to shed a languid tear at their funerals.

Time is the only thing we kill, but we know how to kill it cheerfully. And somehow there always seems plenty of it left.

We have time to count the birthing buds on a bough being born into leaves. We can hear the whisper and laughter of God in every vocal wind that blows.

Yes, the lazy man is not altogether a loser in life. He also has the added compensation of knowing that, while he hasn't really got much done, this only leaves him that many more worthwhile things he can still find to do if he ever decides to change his ways and become a busybody.

Publisher Of Newsletter Says Women's Liberation Stronger

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A tremendous sense of common cause, genuine cooperation and organization on all levels is what's happening to women's liberation today, declares Susan Davis, editor and publisher of the monthly newsletter, "The Spokeswoman."

Ms. Davis, as she prefers to be called, sees her publication as an information service, "a very how-to-do-it thing, a sort of clearing house for national news the mass media doesn't pick up that women need to know about."

Started in June 1970, it was a spinoff from her work at Urban Research, a Chicago news-gathering service, where she edited a newsletter on minority business. Last summer she bought "Spokeswoman," still published in Chicago, from the parent firm.

The printer is a woman, Ruby Bailey, who at one time was production manager at Urban Research but now has her own printing company. The editor reports the newsletter is already paying its way through subscriptions that have come from word of mouth and praise in women's magazines.

"I hate it when people say women's lib—it sounds so chichi," says the ordinarily soft-spoken Ms. Davis, who comes on strong, however, when the subject is women's liberation. "It's worth taking a little extra time to say the whole thing."

"The movement is spreading like wildfire," she said on a visit to New York to pick up an award from Mademoiselle magazine as one of seven outstanding young women. "The amount of material I get is phenomenal. Every month I receive 40 women's publications and people tell me when I cover something they get 50 or 60 phone calls and queries."

"The movement's not competitive, it's not hierarchical," she continues. "It's strong and powerful—constructive, not destructive power—and it goes across all traditional divisions."

The 29-year-old brunette is active in the National Organization for Women, as well as many other groups. "I try to join everything," she points out.

"A lot of the reason women haven't identified with women's liberation," she goes on, "is that their margin of security is so slim they can't afford to join a movement that is not strong. As it gets stronger they can afford to commit themselves."

Ms. Davis believes that consciousness-raising happens in all kinds of ways and that people go through different stages at different times.

"All the inner searching and inner honesty is very tough," she concedes, "but any woman, married or not, can be a liberated woman, doing things in the whole world—facing power, confronting power, fighting for power in a positive way."

She herself believes in marriage, but only with a marriage contract that is written to suit the lives of the two people involved. However, right now she doesn't have much private time.

"My social life has always been my professional life," says Ms. Davis, who majored in Russian at Brown University and did graduate work at Harvard. "It will always be important that I have a job that is socially relevant. I want to do 'Spokeswoman' well. I think it is important and will continue to be important. With the relevant way to finance women's projects."

Banking Panel Okays Boldt And Grayson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The strike-ridden Pay Board is becoming more harmonious and better able to set wage policy, its chairman told Senators Thursday. But at the same hearing organized labor asked that he be fired for incompetence.

"We now have a united board, ready to go ahead and do business," said Pay Board Chairman George H. Boldt. "Nine business and public members of the board endorsed Boldt's leadership as patient and civil, but a spokesman for the AFL-CIO called Boldt inexperienced and unworkable in labor matters and a 'rubber stamp' for President Nixon."

Shortly after hearing all this the Senate Banking Committee approved confirmation for Boldt by voice vote, sending his name to the Senate floor where top-sided approval was expected. Also approved by the committee were confirmation for Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. and John E. Sheehan, a new member of the Federal Reserve Board, both of whom also were expected to win Senate approval.

Banking Committee Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., rushed all three names to the Senate, where they could be acted upon as soon as Friday. Although Boldt and Grayson have held their jobs since October, Congress has written into law a requirement that they now be confirmed by the Senate.

Boldt received most of the criticism handed out Thursday, but Grayson came in for his share too.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Grayson wields perhaps too much personal power over the economy. "You are a price czar. You have life and death power in some cases over business," Proxmire said.

Grayson said he thought that was "a little bit overstated." Proxmire questioned Boldt closely about allegations that Boldt has not exerted firm leadership over the board.

Boldt conceded that in the early weeks the board's meetings were highly contentious and vituperative. But Boldt said, "during the past three weeks we have had the most remarkable rapport... a harmony developing within the board."

Proxmire said he thinks Boldt's prediction of future cooperation among board members is "very optimistic."

Blame Influenza For More Deaths In Nation

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Deaths attributed to influenza have risen for the third straight week, the Center for Disease Control (CDC) reports.

The CDC has added Tennessee to the list of states where outbreaks of A2, or Hong Kong flu, have become widespread.

Others include Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Nebraska, Delaware and Colorado.

For the week ending Jan. 22, the CDC said, 920 deaths attributed to influenza or pneumonia were reported from 122 cities. Normally, the number of deaths in those cities would be 584, a spokesman said.

The 122 cities are used to measure the rate of mortality from influenza or respiratory illnesses.

New regional outbreaks of Hong Kong flu have been reported in Georgia and Oklahoma.

Both states were added to those previously listing regional outbreaks, including New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Minnesota, Kansas, Iowa, South Dakota, Maryland, North Carolina, Texas, Louisiana, Idaho, Montana, and Oregon.

Isolated flu outbreaks have been reported in Vermont, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Missouri, Florida, South Carolina, Alabama, Oklahoma, Utah, Washington, Hawaii and California.

U.S., Soviets Agree Cutback Talks Needed

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are in agreement that talks on cutting back forces in Eastern and Western Europe must take place outside a general European conference on security and cooperation, U.S. officials said Thursday.

So far as was known, the agreement is not a formal one, the officials said, but both sides think the discussion on military cuts would be too long and complex for a short session of Cabinet ministers also meeting on the other subject.

The U.S. government has been trying to keep the two subjects on separate tracks, while pressing to take up force reductions first. The hope that this can be done was kept alive by a statement the Soviet Union and its allies issued Wednesday after a two-day meeting in Prague.

It urged a quick start on a conference to deal with economic, governmental and cultural cooperation in Europe. Then it said an accord on force reductions would also contribute to European security and added:

"An agreement could be reached on the modalities of the discussions touching these problems."

Congressional Probers, ICC Officials Disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators clashed with Interstate Commerce Commission officials Thursday in a dispute over how the agency handled Joseph C. Bonanno's bid to gain control of a railroad.

The controversy extends to whether Bonanno, of Essex Fells, N.J., is running a box-car-refurbishing business on a 27-mile railroad in northern Illinois. Bonanno had been involved in a Penn Central box-car incident in Illinois a year ago.

House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., at a hearing on the way the Marianna and Blountsford Railroad is being run, accused the ICC of acting too quickly in approving Bonanno's application three days after receiving it last September.

Since the ICC's approval, Staggers said, a dispute has developed over who actually owns the line, there "has been a wholesale bringing in of empty boxcars for repainting and refurbishing and the people who depend on that railroad are being ignored."

ICC Chairman George M. Staggers, defending the actions of his agency, told Staggers: "I think we served the public when we got some kind of service in there."

The railroad stopped running in December 1970, Staggers said, and the ICC then gained an injunction ordering restoration of service. At a federal court hearing last August, the then-owner of the railroad, George G. Tapper, was told to resume service or pay a $250 per day penalty, Staggers added.

The following month, the ICC approved Bonanno's application to acquire control of the line, and "five days after the speedy commission approval, the Cadillac and Lake City Railroad, another carrier controlled by Mr. Bonanno, filed in bankruptcy," Staggers said.

Bonanno had been involved in an earlier dispute with the Penn Central Railroad, itself in financial trouble, after an FBI raid on the premises of the La Salle and Bureau County Railroad in Illinois, Staggers said.

In that incident, he added, 638 Penn Central freight cars were found being repainted on a section of the yard rented by Bonanno.

"Mr. Bonanno was found to have purchased only 466 of those cars," Staggers said. "There was no satisfactory explanation as to how the additional cars came to be in his possession."

"This was in March of 1971. At the time the commission approved Mr. Bonanno's application, he had been ordered to pay $150,000 to the Penn Central as compensation for the unauthorized possession of its cars—that obligation was still outstanding," Staggers said.

"In addition, the press reported that criminal charges against Mr. Bonanno were being investigated by a grand jury. No criminal charges were brought against him, however," he said.

Committee investigator Michael F. Barrett testified that between Nov. 24 and Jan. 18, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad delivered to the Marianna and Blountsford 118 old freight cars bearing markings of various lines—part of a 466-car fleet which Bonanno bought from Equitable Assurance Society in 1970.

These are being refurbished and markings of the Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad are being placed on them, he said.

Meanwhile, he said, there has been a sharp deterioration of service on the line. Staggers said the "completeness and veracity of the financial information should have been examined in a much more responsible and complete manner" by the ICC when it considered Bonanno's application.

He gave Staggers 30 days to look into the matter and report back to Congress. "We are especially concerned with the present condition of the railroad, what is being done with it, and who owns it," Staggers said.

A cucumber and two cabbages are the All-America vegetables for 1972.

Cucumber Victory is flavorful, dark green and, most important, disease resistant. Winner of the bronze medal, it is a female or gynoecious hybrid, which means it has a preponderance of female flowers, contributing to heavy yield.

Victory is crisp and top-rated for size and shape for a slicing cucumber. Because of its resistance to both powdery mildew and downy mildew, which often turn cucumber plants white, Victory can be used over a wider range of climates than other cucumbers. It also has considerable tolerance to angular leaf spot and to anthracnose, two more production problems.

The cabbages are Ruby Ball, an early variety, and Red Head, a later type. Both are reds, Ruby Ball winning a gold medal and Red Head a bronze award.

Ruby Ball is a first generation hybrid, uniform, with short core, soft and sweet. It produces five-pound heads.

Red Head also is an F1 hybrid, has fine uniformity, excellent flavor, compact head and dark color.

Both red cabbages are reported excellent in salads and delicate as a cooked vegetable. The vegetables were tested in 27 gardens in the United States, Canada and Mexico. All-America says only the best vegetables are considered for an award.

As a reminder to gardeners looking for other top varieties, here are a few recent-year vegetable winners:

1971—Early Xtra Sweet sweet corn.

1970—Small Fry tomato and Waltham Butternut winter-type squash.

Someone asked Purdue University Extension entomologist Glen Lehker why so many different pesticides were needed, saying it seemed that three or four would be enough.

"Would three or four drugs be enough to treat all kinds of human ailments?" Lehker replied. "The same principle applies to pesticides."

If plants such as tomato and potato appear stunted and eventually die by mid-July it could be caused by a walnut tree growing nearby. There is evidence that the black walnut exerts a detrimental effect on certain plants if their roots or bark actually touch. This includes apple, blackberry, alfalfa and beets.

By contrast, we are told, certain plants, such as Kentucky bluegrasses, often grow better beneath walnut trees.

The substance involved is Juglone, a naphthaquinone considered valuable in treating some skin diseases.

Two Railroads Try To Block Train Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an 11th hour maneuver, two railroads filed complaints Wednesday to block the scheduled merger of the Illinois Central and the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads.

The merger, scheduled to take place next month, would increase the competitive advantage of the combined Illinois Central-Gulf to the detriment of the complaining carriers, the railroads said in statements filed with the Interstate Commission.

The Missouri Pacific said the commission should require the Union Pacific to divest itself of its stock in Illinois Central Industries, parent corporation of the Illinois Central Railroad, within one year of the merger. The Union Pacific reportedly owns 16 per cent of the stock in ICI which is held in trust. It has agreed to sell its interests within 10 years of the merger.

But Missouri Pacific attorneys argued that a stock ownership would permit the Union Pacific to control the merged railroads and cause an annual growth traffic loss to the Missouri Pacific of $11.5 million, roughly 44 per cent of the Missouri Pacific's annual pretax net income.

Kansas City Southern Lines said the two merged railroads would competitively encircle KCS and questioned the alleged savings to be gained by the merger. It described the purported $10.8 million annual savings of the merged railroads as "unwarranted optimism" and cited the recent Penn Central financial difficulty as a case where the ICC failed to adequately scrutinize savings claims made by partners in a proposed merger.

Business—Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Only three of every 10 investors should buy and sell shares in American industry directly instead of through an intermediary, such as a mutual fund, says investment adviser Tom Martin.

The first investor is the one who enjoys and is good at picking stocks. The second enjoys following the market as a hobby or avocation. The third "has a damn good source of information."

Martin may be biased, because he is executive vice president of Anchor Corp., which serves as investment adviser for mutual funds having assets of close to $2 billion. He also is a man of unusual candor.

In Martin's view, the mutual fund industry is slowly emerging from a period of agonizing reappraisal of its goals and procedures after running off the track during the 1960s.

Those were the dramatic years of "performance." As happens from time to time, people develop the notion that fortunes are made easily in stocks. Many factors contributed, but the mutual funds certainly did their share.

"We lost sight of our goals," said Martin, explaining how some funds permitted the investing public to use them as vehicles for short-term trading instead of long-term investing.

"Funds were not meant for short-term gains," he said, "but some funds participated in the game. They did nothing to prevent it."

The news media is guilty also. The performance records of glamor funds were widely acclaimed, and the insinuation was that they could repeat their short-term gains year after year. They couldn't.

In fact, as too often happens, the peak of publicity about some of the glamor funds coincided with their peak accomplishments. Millions of dollars thereafter poured into funds whose only direction was down.

Following the performance disaster came more bad months from 1968 to 1970, when many funds turned in mediocre records, mainly because they didn't foresee the extent and duration of economic problems.

The public reacted by slowing their purchases and raising their redemptions. Many mutual funds investors switched to corporate or U.S. Savings Bonds and some simply put their cash back in the bank.

"Now," said Martin, "we must regain the confidence of the public and regain that market—and it is our market."

He sees mutual funds as competing for the savings dollar—the same money that goes into the banks—as much as for investment dollars. And to prove it deserves this money, he claims the funds now place a great deal more emphasis on long-term consistency and stability.

In order to achieve goals, many funds, including those in the Anchor Group, are originating their own research rather than trusting to that of the brokers, which Martin claims is deteriorating in quality.

In his view, now is the time for financially oriented stocks, such as banks and insurance companies.

Curiously, however, there is in his view a "schizophrenic" aspect to the market in that some of the low-priced, less-established stocks may provide good speculation because, Martin says, there is an abundance of money available for trading as opposed to investing.

When there is an excess money supply—when the supply exceeds that needed for commercial activity—"it inevitably finds its way into speculation in art, real estate, new issues, small capital stocks, stocks with a story."

"Lots of new issues will be reaching the market this year, and ordinary investors should be guided by the maxim, 'If you can get them, don't take them.'"

Better instead to invest through a mutual fund, he says. The industry has learned its lessons, he adds. It has grown up, and so have many investors. "They don't demand the big gains now that they know the risks."

Orange Base Imported For Popular Asian Drink

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—A drink called Green Spot has been a big seller in several Asian countries for years although its orange base is imported from California thousands of miles away.

The same beverage is sold by nearly 1,800 dairies in the United States under their brand labels.

The fact that some Asians prefer a drink made from California oranges instead of one made from their native fruits helps explain why the specialty food business is so stable and profitable. It also helps explain how Burton J. Vincent, a Chicago stockbroker, and his associates ran a $77,000 investment in a little firm called Capitol Food Industries, Inc., into a $23 million a year business in 15 years. They hope to run the volume to $50 million over the next three years.

Three Reasons
"When we started casting about for a business to put our nest egg in we finally chose specialty foods for three reasons," Vincent said. "The business has price stability and hence a long profit span. Specialty foods usually have a long shelf life in stores, no perishability hazards. Third, they are unique products as a rule with a distinctive formula that competitors can't easily copy and this simplifies marketing and advertising techniques."

With only $77,000 to play around with Vincent's group first had to accumulate more capital. "We did that by using our financial knowhow to buy

WHEAT FUTURES SAG
SOYBEANS ADVANCE
CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices sagged 2 1/2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, but soybeans advanced 1 1/2 cents.

Losses of up to 1/2 cent were posted in the corn and oats pits. Soybean oil advanced 15 points and soybean meal prices were virtually unchanged.

Ice broilers gained 10 points or so in very light and mostly local trade, although there was a fair amount of commercial support on the opening.

The selling of wheat, corn and oats futures apparently was influenced, to a degree, by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's report after the close, estimating acreage farmers plan to devote this year to the major grains.

From the liquidation in the three grain futures pits it would appear that the trade expected a possible increase in acreages, that longs were liquidating and that some speculative short positions were being assumed.

Trade was mixed throughout the floor and very active.

In the soybean complex, it appeared that the buying element expected a slight rise in acreage, but with the expanded usage of beans, oil and meal that has been forecast there still could be a tight supply situation in these commodities.

Sellers were a little on the scarce side in oil and beans.

After about an hour, wheat was 3/4 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel lower, March 1.65 1/2; corn was 1/2 to 3/4 lower, March 1.20 1/2; oats were unchanged to 1/2 lower, March 76 1/2 cents and soybeans were 1/2 to 1 1/4 cents higher, March 3.17 1/2.

small specialty food businesses that were in trouble, build them up and sell them at a profit," he explained. "In that way we accumulated a little over $1 million in a few years."

With that financial muscle, Capitol Foods set out to buy specialty food businesses it could operate and expand permanently. It chose well-established small businesses. One was Green Spot. Another was Bates Packaging Services, Inc. Bates makes ice cream sandwiches, both under its own Little Giant and Giant labels and for other ice cream producers.

This is an old but unusual business. It doesn't pay the average ice cream factory to own its own sandwich-making machines. Bates operates mobile sandwich machine units. A Bates truck drives up to the ABC ice cream plant, unloads the machines and makes up a month's supply of sandwiches from ABC's ice cream. Next month, the Bates truck will come again. Incidentally, Bates has just acquired new machines that will make sandwiches twice as fast and in a wider variety of sizes.

Other Ventures
Capitol also owns Gerkens Cacao Industries NV, a Dutch producer of premium cocoa for candy and bakery goods. It owns Dairy House, Inc., a specialist in aseptic canning.

Dairy House also produces Kayo, a canned chocolate milk drink, and Lo So, a line of canned flavored milk beverages for persons on restricted low sodium diets.

Two baking firms, Formel and Crescent, produce specialty cookies.

"We've made 14 acquisitions and six divestitures in recent years," Vincent said, "and we are going to continue to make acquisitions as well as to expand our successful operations rapidly."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Thursday made a spirited comeback from a six-session slump as it responded to good economic news. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials surged ahead 10.68 points to close at 899.83. Advances on the New York Stock Exchange led declines by nearly 3 to 1.

Analysts attributed the upturn to news the government's index of leading economic indicators rose sharply in December. The performance of the index foreshadowed economic activity in the coming months, they said.

The gainers included airlines, electronics, aircrafts, farm implements, mail order-retail, motors, and steels. All other groups were mixed.

The advance ended a six-session losing streak, during which the Dow industrial average fell some 28 points from a post-Thanksgiving high of 917.22.

Big Board volume jumped to 20.36 million shares from 14.95 million shares Wednesday, when turnover was the second-lightest this year.

On the American Stock Exchange, volume rose to 6.9 million shares from 4.51 million shares Wednesday.

The most-active Big Board issue was Mohawk Data, off 1/2 at 24 1/4 on a volume of 247,200 shares.

Of the 1,757 issues traded on the Big Board, 1,102 advanced, and 412 declined. New yearly highs were reached by 80 issues and lows by 2. Of the 1,199 issues traded on the Amex, 726 advanced, and 243 declined.

The number of blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board jumped to 146 from a revised 105 Wednesday.

The largest block was 122,700 shares of Mohawk Data, which traded at 24, off 1/4.

Determined To Defeat Unemployment, Inflation

Nixon Assures Congress Economic Outlook Bright

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joblessness has become the great economic enemy, President Nixon said Thursday. He assured Congress he is determined to defeat both unemployment and inflation, and reported "the outlook is bright" for success.

In his annual Economic Report to Congress, Nixon quashed with finality the hints by some officials of an early end to Phase 2. Price-wage controls will be enforced, he said, until the goal of "reasonable price stability can be maintained without controls."

"We will persevere until the goal is reached," he promised, "but we will not keep the controls one day longer than necessary."

The report, third and last of the major presidential messages to the new session of Congress, announced a strong business expansion in the final quarter of 1971. Real output rose 6 per cent in annual rate, twice the rate of the preceding six months.

Gross national output will rise by nearly $100 billion in 1972, or more than 9 per cent, to a total of $1,145 trillion, the message said, and two-thirds of the record gain will be real, not just inflation.

"1972 begins on a note of much greater confidence than prevailed 6 or 12 months ago," the President said. "Output is rising at a rate which will boost employment rapidly and eat into unemployment. There is every reason to expect this rate of increase to continue ..."

"We are converting the fear of perpetual inflation into a growing hope for price stability ... For the first time in over a decade, the United States is moving decisively to restore strength to its international economic position."

"The outlook is bright, but much remains to be done. The great problem is to get the unemployment rate down from the 6 per cent level where it was in 1971 ..."

"Six per cent unemployment is too much, and I am determined to reduce that number significantly in 1972."

Nixon said the 1971 tax cuts and the massive budget deficits he announced in Monday's fiscal 1973 budget message will provide an upward thrust for the economy. Current federal spending, he said, would exceed revenues by $8.1 billion even if the economy were running at full employment.

"This is strong medicine, and I do not propose to continue its use," he assured the lawmakers, "but we have taken it in order to give a powerful stimulus to employment."

A forecast that the recent 6 per cent gain in real output will continue in 1972, while the year-to-year rise in prices diminishes to 3 1/4 per cent—and to a rate below 3 per cent by the year-end—was made in the report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, headed by Herbert Stein.

Chairman Stein was among those criticized by congressmen recently for speculating that the Phase 2 controls might be lifted before the November election. He later explained he meant the ceilings might or might not be needed that long, but would be kept as long as needed.

Today the President's unusually brief 2,200-word message and the council's 295-page report which accompanied it were in agreement on the point. Controls will be kept until reasonable stability can be maintained without them, Nixon said, and "how long it will take no one can say." But: "That state of affairs can and will be reached."

Success will depend on cooperation of the American people, Nixon said, not only through compliance with the regulations but in a "mutual understanding of the difficulties that all of us—working people, businessmen, consumers, farmers, government officials—encounter in this new and complicated program."

"Our experience in the past few months convinces me that we shall have this necessary ingredient for success," Nixon said.

The council's report opened with a reminder to Americans that, despite the problems and disappointments of recent years, the United States remains unique in economic strength.

"Total output per capita in 1971 was higher in the United States than anywhere else in the world," it said. "Output per worker, per hour of work, and—as far as can be estimated—per unit of all resources were also the highest in the world."

"In all of these dimensions, the economy continued to progress in 1971. In all of them the figures showed record highs last year. Labor productivity—output per hour of work—rose more rapidly than it had for several years ..."

"There was a major shift in the allocation of total output from military to civilian uses ..."

"Real compensation per hour of work increased 2.5 per cent ... On the average during 1971 there were 79 million people at work, the highest number on record."

"At the end of the year the prospect was that 1972 would see rising output, diminishing unemployment, a reduced rate of inflation, and a stronger U.S. position in the world economy," the report said.

"In every major class of goods and services except new housing, the outlook is for a greater rise or smaller decline than in 1971, the council noted. It predicted that:

"A sizable increase in business investment in inventories is probable." The inventory buildup may total $8 billion.

"Net exports during the year should 'stop falling and begin rising.' Exports fell from a level of $4.7 billion more than imports in the first quarter to a $2 billion below imports in the last quarter of 1971."

"After three years in which federal purchases of goods and services have hardly risen in dollar terms and have actually declined after allowing for inflation, federal purchases will start rising again."

"Business outlays on new plant and equipment will rise—about 9 per cent, according to current surveys of company plans—after sluggish increases in recent years, because of the restored tax credit for investment and the general expansion."

"And: 'Consumer expenditures will increase more rapidly, spurred by rising earned incomes, tax reductions, larger Social Security benefits, and greater confidence in the future.'"

There are hazards in the forecast, the council said. Housing may not maintain its robust growth, inventory building may come later in the year, the hoped-for improvement of exports based on the global realignment of currency exchange rates may take longer than expected.

"The picture drawn here is not one of takeoff into a cyclical boom," the council said. "But on the other hand, the upturn may be more rapid than is now projected."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's top antipollution enforcer has fired his legislative director because of leaked memos stressing administration willingness to weaken environmental bills as an aid to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

The announcement by William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), came just six days after Ruckelshaus publicly accused Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, of playing politics with the environment.

Ruckelshaus said Wednesday that he was accepting the resignation of Howard A. Cohen, 30, who joined the EPA three months ago. An EPA spokesman acknowledged that Cohen's resignation was requested because of "policy differences brought to a head" by The New York Times' publication of memos attributed to Cohen.

In an interview, Cohen said the memos were prepared for him, not by him. He said he disagreed with some of the suggested political strategy and never forwarded the memos to Ruckelshaus.

New Charges Certain
Cohen's dismissal appeared certain to trigger new Democratic charges that the administration has taken a soft stand on environmental cleanup in deference to corporate and farm interests.

record. In November the count passed 80 million for the first time."

In a passage dealing with less-comfortable statistics, the council made the admission that what happened in 1970 was a recession. Until now it has been a slowdown, a hesitation, or other euphemism. In today's report came the blunt statement: "In 1970 the United States was in a mild recession."

"At the end of the year the prospect was that 1972 would see rising output, diminishing unemployment, a reduced rate of inflation, and a stronger U.S. position in the world economy," the report said.

DEVINE LIKES CARDS' CHANCES

The St. Louis Cardinals blew into Central Illinois Thursday offering "a breath of spring" with thoughts of baseball. The timing was off by several degrees and a few inches of snow, but the optimism offered was strictly summertime.

Players and front office personnel of the Cardinals hit Springfield and Jacksonville Thursday night, with a stop in Taylorville set for the evening, and few were left unconvinced that the outlook for the Cards is rosier for 1972.

Perhaps the most optimistic of the group was the man who makes things go, General Manager Bing Devine, who quickly states that he has not been discouraged by the number of off-season moves he was able to make and adds that he doesn't expect to do much more shuffling of personnel before the bell rings.

"WE DIDN'T MAKE as many changes as we have in the past, but I didn't feel we needed to," commented Devine during an interview Thursday. "I feel we strengthened ourselves in some areas where we needed help, but it is always a gamble."

One of the games Devine speaks of centers around bullpen help, sorely missing during the 1971 season.

"It was no secret that we needed lefthanded relief help last year, and we think we may have it," feels Devine, who was named Major League Executive of the Year in both 1963 and 1964.

"The only big deal we made was a four-for-four deal with the Mets. The big names were Jim Beachamp and Chuck Taylor for us and Art Shamsky for the Mets. But the one we think may really help is Charles Hudson, a minor league relief pitcher who pitched at Memphis last year. He is a southpaw, and although he hasn't pitched in the majors, our scouts have given us excellent reports on him and think he may be able to help us. We also picked up Jim Bibby from the Mets. He has always had a fine arm and although he is in his mid 20's, we think he has a good chance of being a starter for us."

"WE ALSO THINK we have helped ourselves by getting Joe Grzenda from Washington. He is another southpaw relief pitcher who had a fine season in the American League. Besides those trades, we have added infielder Marty Martinez for catcher Bob Stinson and have signed Jim Maloney and Donn Clendenon. With Shamsky and Clendenon we have helped our bench from both sides of the bench, and you cannot minimize your bench if you are going to be a contender."

Devine was approached on two other major trades, but turned thumbs down. "We would have liked to had Dave Roberts from San Diego for our fifth starter, but they wanted a second baseman and we were not willing to part with Ted Sizemore. We were interested in Lee May of Cincinnati, but they were talking Lou Brock and we lost interest in that one."

As for further dealings, Devine thinks it unlikely any big names will be turning in the Cardinal red and white. "You can always help your pitching, but I wouldn't know where to go now. You are not going to get any of the major pitchers now. In my opinion, something would have to happen quite suddenly for us to make any major changes before spring training. We might see some things then and have to make changes, but we aren't in the mood right now. Hopefully, we won't need to make any big moves then."

DEVINE, WHO WAS the Cardinal GM from 1957-64 before being fired and moving to the Mets only to return in 1967, was something of an exception in the trading mart during the winter sessions.

"There were probably more big deals this year than ever before," says Devine, who has never hesitated to move some big names in and out. "It wasn't surprising, however. 'It is nearly impossible anymore to build your own club in the minor leagues. You just can't develop every category in the minors. You have to trade for your deficits and may have to trade away some areas where you have a surplus. That's the nature of the game now.'"

Which teams were helped the most by trades? "Most people feel Houston helped themselves considerably. Los Angeles, Atlanta and Cincinnati also changed their ball clubs quite a bit, but it's all just on paper. I think that division is evening itself out just as ours has. It should make for two good races in each league."

HERE 'N' THERE: Devine, in answer to a question from a fan in Springfield concerning the Cardinals' gamble on Don Shaw, Grzenda and Hudson in the bullpen, quipped, "I'll tell you very simply what happens if the gamble doesn't work, we're in a lot of trouble." Devine, who is said to live by the telephone, ever ready to listen to, or make, trade offers, got off three long-distance calls during the some 50 minutes the Cardinal Caravan was in Jacksonville Thursday.

JACKSONVILLE bowlers fared quite well last weekend in the first round of the state Illinois Women's Bowling Association Tournament in Belleville. The WJIL team rolled a 3085, fifth best, while Marion Manker rolled the top scratch series with a 642. Mrs. Manker's 687 handicap total was fourth best in the early standings.

OVERLOOKED in last week's coverage of the JHS Four-Team Tournament was the brilliant defensive job turned in by the Crimsons' Jim Bonds in Jacksonville's surprisingly easy 97-70 romp over a strong Chicago Austin club. Bonds was paired off against Austin's Mike Johnson and held the high-scoring Johnson to a mere nine points, perhaps the biggest difference in the game. Johnson had 56 points in his other two tourney appearances.

ILLINOIS SCHOOL for the Deaf has finally filled its football schedule for next year with the addition of Martinsville, an eastern Illinois school. The Tigers will be at Martinsville the second date next season. ACCORDING to Cardinal officials, Springfield, Ill., residents purchased more mail order tickets to games at Busch Stadium than any other community outside metropolitan St. Louis. Jacksonville is still, by far, the biggest spender on the special nights with the Cardinals, with an even loftier 2,000 goal set for this coming season.

Abe Gibron Takes Over Bears' Post

CHICAGO (AP) — Abe Gibron, an assistant Chicago Bear coach since 1965, signed a multi-year contract as new head coach Thursday, replacing Jim Dooley who was fired after the Bears lost their five final games of the 1971 National Football League season.

Gibron, 53, a big, boisterous man who mingled freely with Bear players on and off the field, served as both line coach on offense and defense since joining the Bears in 1965 after five years as line coach for the Washington Redskins.

Owner George Halas, clearing the coaching decks before the start of the NFL player draft Tuesday, said that Gibron's contract was for an unannounced duration.

Gibron becomes the sixth different head coach in the team's 53-year history.

Bear coaching tenures were previously held by Halas on four separate 10-year stints, from 1920 to 1927; Luke Johnson and Hank Anderson, co-coaches from 1928-45; Ralph Jones, 1930-32; Paddy Driscoll, 1956-57; and Dooley, 1968-71.

Dooley, also a Bear organization man, was fired by Halas shortly after the Christmas holidays. The entire coaching staff, except Gibron, was also given his walking papers.

Dooley's dismissal followed a disappointing 6-8 record after the Bears compiled a moderately impressive record at mid-season.

Gibron came up through Michigan City, Ind., schools and played one year of college football at Valparaiso. His professional playing experience included five years as an outstanding lineman with the Cleveland Browns from 1950-55 after a pro debut with the Buffalo Bills of the All-American Conference.

"I've been sweating this thing out until last night when I officially learned I was head coach," said Gibron. "Hell, I'm down to under 300 pounds now."

Gibron, who transferred to Purdue after a year at Valparaiso, said he had been given a free rein in naming his assistants.

"I want six," he said. "Former Bear assistants will be considered if they want to come back."

"We are going to have a motivated team—a physical team—a bunch of guys who go after people. The Bears always have had a good system but it has to be approached the right way. We will have a simple but basic Bear system."

"We are going to be a team," he added. "We didn't pull together as a team last year. I want our offense to grow up to know it can win like the defense does. With the personnel we have, and what we get in the draft, I think we can make a run for our divisional title this season."

Jacksonville High school roared back from a big deficit to nail Decatur High school 29-21 in a dual wrestling meet at the JHS Bowl Thursday evening.

The Crimsons, now 10-3 in duals, dropped three of the first four matches before rallying with victories in the final three weights to take the team decision.

Dave Floyd at 105 pounds gave JHS its first points with a 10-6 count, Aaron Haley at 134 was a 13-5 victor before the Crimsons took command in the upper weights.

Isaac Haley at 157, drew 4-4, Orville Wheatley pinned his opponent in 5:21, Willie Stewart at 187 pinned his man in 3:55 and heavyweight Thor Thorson scored a clinching 7-1 decision.

Results: 98—Kevin Simcox (D) d Kim Turner (J), 10-0; 105—Dave Floyd (J) d Darrell Good (D), 10-6; 114—Jeff Henington (D) p Kent Morris (J), 2-54; 121—Mike Muehling (D) d Jack Fortado (J), 6-0; 128—Mark Blimbing (J) d Kevin Dorchow (D), 4-0; 134—Aaron Haley (J) d Keith Kenney (D), 13-5; 140—Jim Cook (D) d Ray Overton (J), 5-3; 147—Bob Williams (D) d Jim Keating (J), 1-0; 157—Isaac Haley (J) drew with Greg Patton (D), 4-4; 167—Orville Wheatley (J) p Dan Kaye (D), 5-21; 187—Willie Stewart (J) p Kevin Campbell (D), 3-55; Hy—Thor Thorson (J) d Ed Root (D), 7-1.

Final score: Jacksonville 26, Decatur 21.

GRADE GAMES POSTPONED CONCORD — Thursday evening's consolation games in the PMSC Conference Grade School Tournament were postponed due to adverse weather conditions and rescheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Saturday's schedule at Triopia High's gymnasium finds Bluffs facing Triopia at 3:30 in the 'B' game and Bluffs meeting Trinity Lutheran at 4:45 in the 'A' contest, both for third place.

In the evening championship games Perry meets Our Saviors for the 'B' crown at 6:30 and Triopia takes on Our Saviors on the 'A' test at 7:45.

Jacks, Routt Eye Key Loop Contests

Rockets Go For Loop Top At Pl. Hill

Jacksonville High school continues to face a situation of having to win and hope for help, while Routt High school tackles its most important conference date of the campaign in the high-light of the local high school basketball weekend.

The JHS Crimsons host Decatur MacArthur this evening and visit Springfield Lanphier Saturday in Capitol Conference rematches, while the Rockets travel to Pleasant Hill in a battle of PMSC Conference underdogs. On the west side, Illinois School for the Deaf plays host tonight to Bluffs.

JHS, a 65-62 loser to Edwardsville Saturday after blitzing Decatur and Chicago Austin in its own tourney last weekend, will be looking for repeats over the weekend. The Crimsons, now 11-4 overall and 6-2 in the league race, defeated MacArthur 65-59 Dec. 10 and downed Lanphier 97-75 Jan. 14. Southeast leads the league race with an 8-0 standing.

Crimson coach Frank Long plans to use the same lineup that has started the past several games with the possible exception of guard Ed Aring, who missed practice this week due to the flu. If Aring is unable to go, junior Tim Reiterman will get the starting nod.

Concerning the Capitol race, Long says, "A lot of things can happen and you always have to think of those things. If we can stay alive and win the rest of the conference games and if Southeast loses and we beat them, we can win it on a percentage basis. We play 14 conference games and Southeast 12."

On last week's games, Long comments, "We played very well Saturday afternoon against Austin, as well as we have all year. I really felt we were ready to play anyone then. We lost to a good club Saturday night. You have to do a lot of things well against a team like that. I have mixed emotions about the game. Some of the boys played very well."

MacArthur, now 7-8 overall and 3-5 in the league, will be without veteran head coach Ray DeMoulin, who will miss the rest of the season after undergoing surgery for a detached retina in his right eye last week. The Generals start 5-11 junior Tom Dossie and 6-0 senior Elgin Hawthorne at center and 6-0 senior Mark Matheson and 5-11 senior Kent Phillips at guards. Taylor has a 13.5 average, with Dossie 11.3 and Matheson 11.1.

Lanphier, now 8-4 and 3-4, will rate as a considerable bigger threat for the Jacks this time as stand-out Eric Moore will be back in the lineup. Moore missed the earlier meeting between the two clubs due to illness. Besides the 6-2 senior rebounding ace Moore at forward, veteran coach Arlyn Lober will open with 6-0 senior Jim Kopatz and 5-9 soph Greg Fimigan at guards. Kopatz packs a lofty 25 points per game scoring mark.

"They beat us over there, but we hope to turn it around here," commented Lober this week. "We just hope they don't shoot as well against us this time, and we hope to play a little better defense."

Routt, after finishing second in last week's meet, takes a 4-0 mark against Pleasant Hill's 3-0 standing, with both clubs 8-7 overall.

"It's certainly a big conference game," says Routt coach Gale Thoroman. "They have beaten Meredosia and Triopia and if they are to be stopped, we have to do it. They have all their big games at home. I saw them against Meredosia and (Sonny) Sansom and (Steve) Shireman are exceptionally quick. I feel we have similar teams."

"I have been quite pleased with our defense, as we have not allowed over 55 points in our last seven games, but to win on the road we will have to play excellent defense and rebound well."

Thoroman will go with his usual starting crew of 6-2 senior Paul Kaufmann and 6-1 senior Bob Ryan at forwards, 6-1 junior Mike Lonergan at center and 6-2 senior Dan Beard and 6-0 freshman Chris Yording at guards.

Pleasant Hill, one of the area's big surprises after several down years, starts 6-2 senior Sansom and 5-9 junior Rick Conner at guards, 6-1 senior Shireman and 6-0 junior Greg Tolbert at forwards and 6-2 senior Gayle Puterbaugh at center. Sansom is just over 20 points per game, with Shireman in the high teens and the club rebounding lead.

ISD will have its hands full trying to stop a six-game losing skid, with the Bluffs Bluejays coming off the PMSC Conference Tournament championship and a nine-game winning streak.

The Bluejays have the area's top defensive average, with ISD rating as the area's lowest scoring club.

will rate as a considerable bigger threat for the Jacks this time as stand-out Eric Moore will be back in the lineup. Moore missed the earlier meeting between the two clubs due to illness. Besides the 6-2 senior rebounding ace Moore at forward, veteran coach Arlyn Lober will open with 6-0 senior Jim Kopatz and 5-9 soph Greg Fimigan at guards. Kopatz packs a lofty 25 points per game scoring mark.

"They beat us over there, but we hope to turn it around here," commented Lober this week. "We just hope they don't shoot as well against us this time, and we hope to play a little better defense."

Routt, after finishing second in last week's meet, takes a 4-0 mark against Pleasant Hill's 3-0 standing, with both clubs 8-7 overall.

"It's certainly a big conference game," says Routt coach Gale Thoroman. "They have beaten Meredosia and Triopia and if they are to be stopped, we have to do it. They have all their big games at home. I saw them against Meredosia and (Sonny) Sansom and (Steve) Shireman are exceptionally quick. I feel we have similar teams."

Wall's Statement To Senate Delayed

MacMurray College Athletic Director and basketball coach William L. (Bill) Wall, who is the current president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches Association, was scheduled to give a statement Thursday before the Subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly Legislation of the United States Senate Judiciary Committee on S-2373, the Basketball Merger Bill.

The appearance was postponed Thursday due to pressing Senate business, but Wall expects to deliver the same statement in the near future.

The statement, in part, follows:

"My name is William L. Wall, currently employed as Director of Athletics and Head Basketball Coach, MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Illinois. I am here in my capacity as President of the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC), which include a membership of over 1500 coaches. We are basically comprised of NCAA member institutional coaches, which includes a membership in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA), National Junior College Athletic Association and high school coaches.

"We represent the viewpoint of the college basketball coaching profession, which, we feel, has a responsibility to protect the values of amateur basketball, the educational opportunities of our players, and the environment in which these things are made possible.

"Our stated position indicates that a merger of the two professional leagues might result in a positive atmosphere for basketball at the collegiate level if certain considerations are provided for. The merger alone will not solve the complicated problems that exist today.

"We hope that any legislation in this area will provide for the following recommendations:

1. That no professional basketball game telecasts be permitted on Tuesday, Friday or Saturday.

2. That once a student-athlete enrolls (first day of class) in an academic institution that he not be tampered with or signed to a professional contract until that academic year is completed. NOTE: It is strongly hoped that a four-year "protection rule" will be legalized. If this is accomplished, we could agree to a "Hardship Clause," which would provide that a player who desires to turn professional and who can demonstrate hardship under pre-determined guidelines, has an opportunity to be evaluated by a joint committee of professional league and college representatives.

3. We would hope that a hard-ship player would have written into his contract a separate "college fund in escrow" clause so that he may complete his education in the future.

4. We are deeply concerned over the various implications to all parties in the recent Howard Porter situation, and in a number of other rumored relationships between professional teams and student-athletes who are still playing college basketball.

5. We request cooperation from professional basketball especially during an Olympic year to insure that the finest eligible United States players be available to represent our country in international competition.

6. That consideration be given to the interests of our former athletes who are currently professional players, and to those of our student-athletes who may choose a professional basketball career in the future.

"It is not our intention to enter into other areas of the proposed merger that we feel do not directly pertain to collegiate basketball. These will be evaluated by other involved, knowledgeable and responsible parties.

"May we extend our great appreciation for the opportunity to present our viewpoints, and our thanks for your consideration."

Grid Cardinals Obtain Worster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis football Cardinals announced the acquisition Wednesday of Steve Worster, former University of Texas running back who played last season in the Canadian Football League.

Worster was a fourth-round draft choice by the Los Angeles Rams in 1971. He signed with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats but was suspended by the CFL after four games because of an arrest on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Worster was arrested at his apartment where he was entertaining friends. He said he had no knowledge of the marijuana.

The 6-foot, 210-pound fullback scored 5.1 yards per carry with the Cardinals.

The Cardinals, in order to get the rights to Worster, gave the Rams a fourth-round draft choice they had obtained when they traded Don Parish to Los Angeles in October.

Tarkenton Traded Back To Vikings

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League traded quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the Minnesota Vikings Thursday for wide receiver Bob Grim, quarterback Norm Snead, running back Vince Clements plus two draft picks. The Vikings, last season's National Conference Central Division champions, gave up this year's No. 1 draft pick and next year's No. 2 selection. The trade returns Tarkenton to the Vikings. He was Minnesota's No. 3 draft pick in 1961, when the team began operations in the NFL expansion, then came to the Giants in 1967 in exchange for four draft choices.

The 1971 season was one of Tarkenton's poorest. He completed 226 of 388 passes for 2,567 yards and a 58.5 completion average and connected for 11 touchdowns. But he had 21 passes intercepted.

His career mark is completions on 2,075 of 3,797 passes for 28,599 yards, 216 touchdowns and 187 interceptions.

Cincy Boss Promises Charge At Pennant

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sparky Anderson, his Big Red Machine remodeled into a sleeker, swifter Cincinnati baseball model, talks confidently about his club's 1972 pennant chances.

"If we don't win it," Anderson said Thursday, "somebody better be burning the fastest fuel in three years" in the National League's West division.

Pinned down, the Reds skipper flatly will not predict a pennant, saying only, "I promise you we'll make a comeback this year."

Cincinnati dwindled from a club record 102 victories and the 1970 pennant to a 79-83 record in 1971. The Reds won by 14½ games two years ago. Last year they tied for fourth with Houston, 11½ games behind the winning San Francisco Giants.

Injuries were the big reason, said Anderson, who is starting his third season at Cincinnati.

"Bobby Tolan was out for the year. Lee May missed the first three weeks of the season. Jim Merritt and Wayne Simpson were hurt," he said.

"And we kept a hand injury to Tony Perez real quiet. He jammed it in spring training. He just could not hold on to the bat with his right hand," Anderson said.

Clan Faces Busy Week In Sports

A Midlands Conference basketball game and four tough wrestling matches await MacMurray College squads this weekend.

The basketball Highlanders will entertain St. Norbert College of West DePue, Wis. Saturday night in the MacMurray Fieldhouse. The 7:30 p.m. contest will match the early season trailers in the Midlands loop: MacMurray is 0-3 in conference to date while St. Norbert stands 1-2.

Coach Bill Wall will send a newly-assembled, speed-oriented lineup into the action. The unit features 6-5 junior center Dave Bremer (Sparta) at center; 6-2 sophomore Gary Haberl (Columbia) and 6-1 frosh Brian Dusenberry (Peoria, Spaulding) at forwards; and a pair of sophomore guards — 5-8 James Hawkins (Brandywine, Md.) and 5-9 Ray Moggio (Livingston).

MacMurray's highly-regarded wrestling squad will face stiff competition Friday and Saturday in Louisiana. The Highlanders of Coach Pete George, who are currently 6-1 in dual meets, will take on Northwestern Louisiana State on Friday, and go up against Auburn, Louisiana State and Tennessee in a triple dual Saturday at I.S.U.

Leading the Highlander grapplers to date is senior and team captain Kent Youngren of New Lenox. Youngren captured his fourth straight division championship in last weekend's MacMurray Invitational, in which he was voted the meet's outstanding wrestler for the third time.

Youngren holds a 15-2 record at midyear, and has a career mark of 82-15. His victory in the invitational meet championship boosted his career win total past previous MacMurray recordholder Ron Otto (1969 grad.) who recorded an 80-12 career mark.

Of the leaders, only Brask, Colbert and Harney played in the afternoon when the winds kicked up and the temperatures dropped.

"It wasn't too bad when we went out," said Littler, a resident of nearby La Jolla.

"It was just too damn cold," said Trevino, a notorious hot-weather player.

"The chill factor made it such that you just didn't have any feel on the greens," said Nicklaus, who missed 10 putts inside 15 feet.

Billy Casper, fighting a heavy cold, had a 73 and Masters champion Charles Coody could only match par 72. Defending champion George Archer, this season's leading money winner, withdrew because of the flu. Arnold Palmer is not competing.

Littler had no complaints about the early morning weather.

"It was just beautiful," he said.

The slightly-built veteran, a former United States Open champion and a two-time winner last season, started on the back nine and took a three-putt bogey on the second hole he played.

Then he started his push, stroking an eight iron to within six feet for the first of five consecutive birdies on the 14th hole.

He ran in 20, 10 and 15-foot putts on the next three holes and just missed an eagle three on the 18th.

He parred the first hole, then birdied the second from seven feet and the third from 12.

"It's easily the best putting I've done in some time," said Littler, who needed only 28 strokes on the greens.

cause the team charged one dollar for programs during last season's Stanley Cup playoffs.

person added. The Reds' lack of speed caught up with them in their first full season in spacious, artificial-turfed Riverfront Stadium.

"We knew we had to have speed even back in 1970," Anderson said, "but it's difficult to make a change after a pennant."

Cincinnati has sacrificed some of its power for speed and defense. The Reds shipped the fence-busting May to Houston for Astro speedboys Joe Morgan and Cesar Geronimo, plus Denis Menke, a top-felding third baseman. Second Baseman Tommy Helms also moved to Houston and Pitcher Jack Billingham to Cincinnati in the deal.

Merger. Trade Rumors Wild In ABA Meeting

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Basketball Association's red-white-and-blue roadshow pulled into Louisville Thursday night covered with snow and replete with talk of trades, mergers and problems in Pittsburgh.

The league, symbolized by the red, white and blue basketballs used in its games, began a series of meetings which will lead up to Saturday night's 5th Annual All-Star game.

League Commissioner Jack Dolph told the Associated Press a trade involving players from two ABA teams will be announced Friday.

While declining to disclose the players involved, another league source said the trade "likely will involve starting players from one Eastern and one Western Division team."

In meetings Friday, league fathers are to consider a series of thorny issues, including drafting of athletes who still have collegiate eligibility, and what is to become of the league's financially troubled Pittsburgh franchise.

But the primary topic of conversation is the proposed merger of the ABA with the older National Basketball Association. Hearings on that merger—which ABA club owners say will trim the financially disastrous bidding war for college talent—have been delayed until next month by a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

Dolph brushed aside rumors that the league would hold a secret draft at the current meetings, as it did before the All Star game a year ago.

"But I've told all the owners to come prepared for a draft," Dolph said, "so that we can make plans in case we decide on an early draft."

Dolph said a player draft could be held within a week, with the early selections of college talent designed to give individual teams time to consider the best approach toward signing the players they've drafted.

Dolph said he saw little chance of the two rival leagues holding a "common draft" this year.

He said he originally had thought the owners would announce at the meetings a transfer of ownership of the Pittsburgh franchise, which has drawn poorly. But he said the matter is not ready for presentation by league trustees.

Today's Prep Spotlight feature takes a look at a pair of players from Havana, Chandlerville and Bluffs High schools.

Chris Benton and John Kastendick are two of the key performers who have sparked Havana to a 9-6 mark to date. Benton, a 6-3 senior forward, is averaging in double figures with some fine individual performances thus far. Benton has been in 11 of 15 games, including a personal high of 25 points vs Rushville. Kastendick, a 6-1 junior, is near twin figures with four games in double figures and a best of 26 against Athens.

Mike Boeker and Dave Nelson are two of the top scorers for Chandlerville this campaign. Boeker, a 5-10 senior, leads the Comets in scoring with a 12.9 average, including nine of 14 games in double figures and a personal high of 24 vs Griggsville. Nelson, a 5-10 junior letterman, is averaging 10.0 per outing with eight outings in double figures and a best of 17 vs Forman.

Tom Sturgeon and Dave Evans are two of the Bluffs' regulars who last week sparked the Bluejays to the PMSC Conference Tournament title. Sturgeon, a 5-11, 200-pound senior forward, rates as one of the club's top rebounders and has a scoring best of 15 points vs East Pike. Evans, 5-8 senior guard, is the team's playmaker with a scoring top of 12 points vs Canton, Mo.

Buckeye, Gopher Relations Shaken

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — While Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke gathered evidence on the brawl that marred the Minnesota-Ohio State basketball game, Ohio's governor criticized Gopher players for what he termed "disgraceful, brutal" action.

And the father of one of the three Buckeye players injured showered blame on Gopher Coach Bill Musselman for "brutalizing, animalizing" his players.

These and other reverberations shook relations between the two conference schools Thursday, as governors of both states commented on the rowdy end to Tuesday night's game at Minneapolis.

Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan called on Duke to use "strong and forceful action" in disciplining University of Minnesota players.

"I've never seen anything as disgraceful, brutal as what took place that night," he added.

Gilligan said he agreed with Buckeye Coach Fred Taylor that it amounted to "a public mugging."

At St. Paul, Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota was quoted as saying he was similarly shocked and disturbed by the incident.

An aide said, "The governor is confident that university officials and the Big Ten will make a careful investigation and take appropriate action to prevent a recurrence of this unsportsmanlike incident."

Ohio State led 50-44 with 36 seconds to play when the trouble broke out, although Gopher players claimed the bad feeling began when they said OSU's Luke Witte elbowed Gopher Bobby Nix after the halftime buzzer.

Minnesota forward Clyde Turner fouled Witte as the 7-foot Buckeye center moved in for a shot. It was ruled by officials to be a "flagrant" foul, and Turner was ejected.

Witte had gone to the floor and Corky Taylor of the Gophers extended a hand to help him up. Taylor contended later that Witte had spat at him at that moment, and Taylor kneed him in the groin.

That brought a rash of skirmishes as players from both benches swarmed onto the floor, as well as dozens of fans from the pepped up crowd of 17,775.

Witnesses, including Buckeye Coach Fred Taylor, said that Ron Bohagen, who had fouled out, stomped on Witte's neck as Witte lay on the floor.

Witte and teammate Mark Wagar were hospitalized overnight and another Buckeye, Mark Minor, was treated and released.

Prof. Wayne Witte, a philosophy professor at Ashland College in Ohio, father of Luke, said he was not surprised at the conduct of the Gopher squad under Coach Bill Musselman.

"Anyone who lives here and has seen Mr. Musselman's teams perform isn't surprised at what happened," said Witte. But he added the viciousness of it was surprising.

The elder Witte said Musselman, who was at Ashland before coming to Minnesota last year, coached teams involved in a "fullscale riot" in 1968 against Grove City College and again two years later against Western New England.

"His (Musselman's) intent seems to be to win at any cost," said Witte. "His players are brutalized and animalized to an extent to achieve that goal."

A spokesman for Musselman, who was in conference and at basketball practice, said the foot Buckeye center moved in for a shot. It was ruled by officials to be a "flagrant" foul, and Turner was ejected.

ISU's Collins Keeps Hot Pace

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI)—He has been compared to "Pistol" Pete Maravich and right now he is as hot as a pistol.

He is Doug Collins, stringbean junior guard at Illinois State University, and the nation's second leading scorer, according to current NCAA basketball statistics.

Collins has burned the cords at an average rate of 33.3 points per game, second by about a point per game average to Dwight Lamar of Southwest Louisiana. Collins, of course, is on his way to rewriting the ISU scoring record book.

More than one coach has noticed a resemblance in playing styles between Maravich and Collins. Like Maravich, Collins shoots with either hand, seemingly at times without even a glance at the basket. And, just as Maravich, he is a fine ball handler and exciting to watch.

"Most Exciting" Player
"He's the most exciting college player in the nation," ISU Coach Will Robinson said. "And he has as much potential as any player I've ever coached."

Those are strong words for a man who, coaching at predominantly black schools in the Detroit area, nursed talents of the likes of professionals Spencer Haywood, Ralph Sampson, Mel Daniels, Ira Harge and Dorie Murrey.

Rival coaches are nearly as enthusiastic about Collins. "He's a good shooter, but his greatest strength is ball handling," Coach Ken Trickey of Oral Roberts observed. "Like Pete Maravich, he's great at hitting the open man."

"He's one of the great guards of the country," Iowa State Coach Maury John said. "We played UCLA, too, and Collins is as good as any guard UCLA has. He could play for anyone in the nation."

"We haven't seen anyone recently who rates any higher as an all-around guard," Murray State Coach Cal Luther commented.

"He has great quickness and great natural ability to get the shot off. He gets the ball away real fast and has the ability to spot the open man and get the ball to him anyway he can," Luther said.

Pat Murphy and John Agans with 18 and 12 points respectively paced the Shamrock B team in the first game. Rahe of Bluffs led his team with nine.

In a game that was closer than the score indicated, Chris Keller hit 16 and Steve Hartz 15 to lead the Our Saviors' A squad. Tony Albertin had high point honors for Bluffs with 17.

Eau Claire Stays Atop NAIA Poll Despite Defeat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eau Claire State suffered its first defeat of the season Monday but the Wisconsin team remained atop the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics weekly basketball ratings.

The Blugolds, 13-1, received 13 first-place votes and 507 points in this week's balloting. Stephen F. Austin, Tex., is second with two first-place votes and 473 points after winning 15 of 16 starts.

Fairmont State, W. Va., remained third with an 11-1 record and Gardner-Webb, N.C., 16-2, is fourth.

Two undefeated clubs jumped in this week's poll. Western Washington State, 15-0, climbed to fifth and Marymount, of Salina, Kan., jumped to sixth after winning its 19th straight.

NFL Scouting Systems Could Make CIA Envious

By JIM HAUGHTON

NEW YORK (NEA) — When representatives of the 26 National Football League teams begin their annual player draft here Feb. 1, they will come armed with what a league official described as "enough logistical material to run a war."

In two days of selecting, the talent hunters will pick 442 players over 17 rounds. Some will be all-Americans, some all-conference and some unheralded. All have been exhaustively observed, studied, analyzed and rated.

By early July many will be deep in one of the most difficult job-hunting assignments in American business. Those who make the pros — one of every 10,000 college players — will earn salaries from $20,000 to $125,000, plus bonuses and generous fringe benefits.

Draft figures over the past several seasons show that each team, on average, will welcome five rookies next fall.

These prize athletes will represent an investment of at least $15,000 for member teams, depending on how much club spends on scouting. Team costs are often closely guarded figures but it is estimated that the bulk of NFL teams now average about $200,000 annually for scouting, with Dallas and Los Angeles perhaps going up to $500,000.

This means that NFL teams spend well over $3 million annually to recruit talent — and costs are rising.

In contrast, head hunters for major business firms figure it costs anywhere from $6,500 to $10,000 — exclusive of salary — for a firm to line up a $25,000 executive for a company.

Modern football's highly skilled, computer-oriented personnel search is a far cry from the game's first draft in 1936.

The visionary Bert Bell, one-time Eagles' owner and later NFL commissioner, sold fellow owners on the value of the draft to equalize talent. He suggested teams do their picking in reverse order to their finish each season. This way, he said, the weaker teams could be improved, the league balanced and the sport helped.

League owners voted May 19, 1935 to put the draft in motion and held their first selections Feb. 8, 1936. Bell's Philadelphia Eagles coincidentally managed to get first pick and selected Jay Berwanger, a back from the University of Chicago. Berwanger didn't want to play pro ball but the then Boston Redskins selected Riley Smith of Alabama as the second pick and he spent five seasons with the club.

In the draft's first years, owners, coaches and general managers came to sessions woefully equipped when compared to today's vast intelligence system. They were aware of the top prospects but after the first half-dozen picks often relied on game programs, newspaper clippings and pre-season annuals to round out choices.

Dan Reeves, late owner of the Los Angeles Rams was a leader in making pro scouting what it is today. Sid Gilman, former coach and general manager of the San Diego Chargers, says the foundation Reeves established in 1946, when he hired Eddie Kotel from Green Bay to serve as the team's full-time talent hunter, still operates.

Rival NFL teams saw the results of Ram scouting. But-tressed by TV money and growing gate receipts, they began to expand their efforts with full and part-time scouts.

With scouting costs increasing, Bell several times advised owners to consider ways of spreading expenses, even suggesting a league-wide scouting system.

But it wasn't until 1961 that Reeves, Cowboy owner Clint Murchison Jr. and San Francisco's Lou Spadia joined forces for football's first scouting combine, aptly called TROIKA. It has grown to QUATRO.

Two other scouting units followed quickly. The Cardinals joined Green Bay and Baltimore to lay the foundation for CEPO (Central Eastern Personnel Organization), which now includes the New York Giants, Atlanta and New England. Baltimore has since left.

The Bears, Lions, Eagles, Steelers and Vikings shortly began BLESTO-V, now expanded to BLESTO-VIII with the addition of the Bills, Colts and 14-2, two-time NAIA champion Kentucky State 9-4, Delta State, Miss. 11-2, and Sam Houston State, Tex., 12-3.

The second ten is Eastern Illinois, Howard Payne, Tex., De-fiance, Ohio, Oklahoma Baptist, Westmont, Calif., Nicholls State, La., Illinois Wesleyan, Stout State, Wis., and Fisk Uni-versity, Tenn.

Dolphins. Still operating alone are the Bengals, Broncos, Jil-ers, Jets, Chiefs and Raiders. The Jets were in a combine with Houston several years ago but dropped out.

The CEPO group offers a prime example of football's scouting thoroughness. CEPO's nine regional scouts, strategically spread across the country, are supplemented by the four scouts and a personnel director each member team is re-quired to have, plus coaches and part-time scouts.

Close to 150 scouts funnel data — a special scouting report done with the help of computer experts — to CEPO head-quarters to be transmitted to member teams via computer reports. These reports rate prospects on everything from size, speed, ability and quick-ness to tackling, judgment, cov-erage, pursuit, attitude, inclina-tion to injury, character and toughness. Linebackers, for in-stance, are rated on ability to diagnose plays, pursuit, abil-ity to catch the ball, lateral moves, strength, tackling.

CEPO director Vince McNally estimates his staff handles 10,000 reports in the spring and 15,000 in the fall. Data on each player from the spring of his freshman year is fed into com-puters and his constant progress evaluated. A final rating does not come until the player's sen-ior season ends.

Twice each year — after spring practice and the close of the regular season — com-bine members meet and review the talent lists.

They occasionally miss a prospect but only rarely. If a young man plays college foot-ball, pro scouts usually know all about him.

"We get all the facts and rate the players accordingly," McNally explains. "First off, we ask that a player must be able to make the team; that he has the capacity to make it in some capacity. Can he make the kickoff team; has he a slight chance or is he rejected? We start from there."

Even with computers, eternal vigilance and dogged deter-mination, however, teams can't always be sure they know what they're getting. "A computer can't measure what's in a man's heart," says BLESTO-VIII director Jack Butler.

In the pros' opinion, the 1972 draft ranks slightly above av-erage with several outstanding candidates, but they think the 1973 draft will be exceptional. It's hard to pinpoint the reason but scouts relate it to "up and down" years in college recruit-ing.

EDWARDSVILLE—William Kunstler, activist criminal lawyer, said Wednesday in a speech at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville that the handling of the Attica prison rebellion convinced him that only confrontation can lead to change in American society. Kunstler called the deaths of 34 prisoners and nine guards last September "wanton, brutal, pre-meditated murder caused by a government that should have known what would happen when 1,000 armed troopers were set loose on 1,500 unarmed men in a confined place." Some 30 years ago a well-known tournament player was enticed into a weekend of rubber bridge with some fair country players. Early in the first session he made an overtrick at no-trump by means of a brilliant end play. An opponent remarked, "We have no chance. You'll slaughter us with overtricks."

The duplicate expert proceeded to play every hand for a match-point top. He wound up as the only loser with hands such as this one.

The play was simple enough.

The club lead was taken in dummy. Trumps were drawn with two leads and South led the six of diamonds. West played low and dummy's jack lost to East's king. Back came the jack of hearts and our hero played the queen. West took his king, led a second heart and the defense scored four tricks and 100 points.

The finesse would have some justification in a match-point game. Give East the king of hearts and South would have his overtrick. At rubber bridge it represented the height of folly.

South couldn't lose his contract if East held the heart king because he could still play East for that card after rising with the ace this first time. He would still go down if East held both top diamonds and no king of hearts. In that case there would be no play for the contract. As the cards lay, the ace play would insure it.

Peanut Butter Bread Recipe Still Popular

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
A friend of ours who lives in Old Deerfield, Mass., and who in her youth took cooking lessons from Fannie Farmer, told us recently that she has been baking peanut butter bread for more years than she cares to remember!

That got us started. We decided to offer you a recipe for the best peanut bread that could possibly be made. A New York friend of ours, the mother of three children, volunteered to do the testing.

Here then is the result of her effort—and a delicious bread it is. Besides trying it on her own youngsters, our New York friend offered it to seven other kids, two mothers and one father; all gave the bread rave reviews.

Then one of her sons, who was going to a Boy Scout staff meeting, took a loaf along with him. The result of that tasting? Ten boys, from 12 to 16 years old, ate up every crumb.

When we served the bread at our house, we liked it best fresh from the oven with butter and jam.

PEANUT BUTTER BREAD
2 cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup (½ of a one-quarter pound stick) butter or margarine, softened
¾ cup chunky peanut butter, at room temperature
¾ cup sugar
1 large egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and salt.

In a medium mixing bowl beat together the butter and peanut butter until blended; beat in sugar, then egg and vanilla.

Add the flour mixture; with a pastry blender mix in until fine crumbs form. Add milk and stir just until mixture is moistened.

Turn into a greased loaf pan (9 by 5 by 3 inches). Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean and top of loaf is golden-brown—35 to 60 minutes.

Place loaf in pan on a wire rack and let stand 5 minutes. With a small spatula loosen edges; turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool. Store wrapped in transparent plastic wrap or foil.

SAILING TO THE SUN

Hate the vacation to end? The Wheatleys do, too. So, at the end of their Caribbean cruises they just stay right on board and sail off again for a second round of sea and sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Marty Wheatley, who live in the Baltimore suburb of Catonsville, have been taking winter cruises since 1962. And for over four years they've been taking two of the shorter cruises back-to-back, for more than double the pleasure. An added convenience is that they're able to board their ship in Baltimore itself and then sail directly off to the springlike waters of the Caribbean or the Bahamas. The ships they sail in have become second homes to them over the years, and the crews are old friends. By now the family get affectionate little special attentions, such as invitations to the captain's table and private cocktail parties, to say nothing of menu suggestions at dinner or reserved deck chairs. "We really feel that we're just getting started when the first cruise ends," says Mrs. Wheatley, explaining the special lure of the second time around.

Ogilvie Looking For Federal Welfare Help

By MICHAEL ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois probably will receive a $60-million cash advance from the federal government before July 1 to fill part of a $107-million hole in the state welfare budget, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Thursday.

In a statement, Ogilvie said the likelihood of such a cash advance to help state what he has described as a mushrooming welfare crisis was an outgrowth of his talks in Washington earlier in the week with officials of the Nixon administration.

Teenager Asks Probation On Damage Charge

JERSEYVILLE — Charles Nicholas Wedding pleaded guilty to criminal damage to property and applied for probation in Jersey County Circuit Court. A hearing on the probation request is set for Feb. 2.

The charge stemmed from an incident Sept. 6 at the Harold Roberts residence in Dow. The 17-year-old youth was arrested by Chief Deputy William Simpson and Deputy Adam Desherlia early the morning of Sept. 6 in an automobile that matched the description of one reported parked near the home of Harold Roberts of Dow where the front door and storm door were found standing open. The youth led officers to a ditch where a television set taken from the Roberts home, was found.

Kevin Hughes was fined $50 and costs on his plea of guilty to illegal use of an intoxicating compound. The charge resulted from an incident on Sept. 27 when Jerseyville Police arrested him after he was found sniffing paint thinner at the Lions' Club Park.

James Green of Florissant, Mo. accused of burglary last April at a farm home near Brighton, pleaded guilty Monday to theft of less than $150 and was placed on probation for one year.

James Green had previously pleaded innocent of the charge. Green had contended he had not participated in the burglary but had purchased the color TV stereo console found in his possession by East Alton police from three persons whom he encountered in an Alton bar.

Jessie Stratman Of Beardstown Dies Wednesday

BEARDSTOWN — Mrs. Jessie Stratman, 31, of Beardstown died at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at Myers Nursing Home here.

She was born in Schuyler county, April 27, 1890, daughter of William and Peggie Phillips Wright.

Three brothers, Sam of Canton, George of Vermont and Clarence of Sterling, survive. Her husband preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Northcutt Funeral Home with burial in Greenmount cemetery in Quincy.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Elliott Sent To Menard

Terry Michael Elliott, 23, of 390 N. Church St., was transferred from the county jail to Menard Penitentiary Thursday morning. He is to serve a 13-year sentence for burglary.

Elliott escaped from the county jail Jan. 20 and was captured two days later.

MAN TICKETED ON TWO COUNTS

City police were called at 1 a.m. Thursday to investigate a man slumped over in a car at the corner of West Morton Ave. and S. Diamond St.

Upon investigation, Joe F. Lentz, 51, of 608 West Beecher Ave., was ticketed for illegal transportation of alcohol and wrong lane usage.

tration. Ogilvie aides, while welcoming any such funds, said they would be merely stopgap and not a substitute for passage of the so-called welfare-reform measures that are the heart of the governor's public-aid program.

As described by Ogilvie aides, the $60 million would be part of a much larger omnibus appropriation placed before Congress with Nixon administration backing. The funds would be advanced to Illinois against its share of federal welfare aid in fiscal 1973.

"I don't know that I would call it a loan," a spokesman for the governor said. "We actually won't pay it back. The federal government will dock us for it next year."

Earlier, Edward T. Weaver, public-aid director, announced the state no longer would contest the order of Judge Daniel A. Covelli of Circuit Court barring the administration from cutting funds for general assistance welfare.

But administration officials added they would continue to appeal constitutional and administrative aspects of Covelli's order.

Covelli had barred a transfer of $21 million in state subsidies for general assistance to such federally funded categories as aid to the aged, blind and disabled.

Administration officials said the $21 million would be better employed in those categories, where it would attract federal "matching funds."

Walter McGath Dies In City Wednesday

Judge Declines To Set Trial Date For Kerner

By ESCAR THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Declaring that bribery and mail fraud conspiracy charges against former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner were complicated, a federal judge declined Thursday to set an early trial date for the case.

Instead, Judge Robert L. Taylor, U.S. District Court, instructed government and defense attorneys to try to reach mutual agreement on a trial date.

If they are unable to agree, Taylor said he will set the date. He indicated it would be sometime next summer in Chicago.

Taylor, 72, was appointed by Chief Justice Warren Burger as trial judge for the case.

Kerner, now on leave as a member of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Chicago, and four other persons are charged in a 19-count indictment with conspiracy to commit bribery and mail fraud stemming from alleged race track stock transactions while Kerner was Illinois governor from 1960 to 1968.

James R. Thompson, U.S. attorney from Chicago, asked Taylor to set July 1 as the trial date. He argued that unless the judge fixed a firm date, defense counsel would adopt "dilatory delaying tactics."

Harold Unger, Washington, D.C., lawyer representing Kerner, opposed the setting of a firm trial date at this time, saying defense counsel needed time to study voluminous documents and to prepare various motions.

Unger substituted for Edward Bennett Williams, noted Washington trial lawyer who was down with pneumonia overnight and was unable to attend the hearing.

F. Lee Bailey, widely known

Boston lawyer and also a member of the defense battery, was tied up in a case in New York City and also did not appear as scheduled.

Taylor gave defense lawyers until March 20 to file pretrial motions. He gave the government until April 20 to file its answers.

The judge set aside May 1-15 for evidentiary hearings on matters brought up by the various lawyers.

In rejecting the government's request that he immediately set a date for the trial, Taylor said:

"This is one of the most sweeping and complex indictments I have ever read. It covers 64 typewritten pages. The charges are so complicated, they obviously will require extended time for defense attorneys to prepare their case."

"I do not feel I can fix a definite date for the trial at this time. The trial will be held as soon as reasonably possible. If you lawyers can't agree on a date, I will set it."

Those indicted besides Kerner, 63, are Theodore Isaacs, 61, state revenue director under Kerner; William S. Miller, 70, chairman of the state Racing Board under Kerner; Joseph E. Knight, 60, director of state financial institutions under Kerner, and Miss Faith McIntruf, former secretary and business associate of Miller.

Walker Favors Bond Issues For Roads

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Dan Walker, a Chicago attorney seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, said Thursday he would finance road building with bond issues—but only if the roads are needed.

Walker said bonds are the proper way to finance capital expenditures, not the pay-as-you-go method favored by Lt. Gov. Paul Simon.

Walker referred to the $1 billion cross-town freeway in Chicago as a "political road" and said: "When I get to be governor, I'm going to stop building on that freeway."

He said Simon—who also is seeking the Democratic nomination—has not objected to the Chicago freeway.

"Maybe Simon is afraid some Chicago precinct captains might not work so hard for him if he did object," Walker said.
